Drs. W. Robbins, Deborah Aish Join U.B.C. Staff

DR. W. ROBBINS

Dr. Williams Robbins, professor of English at Victoria College last year and original city school board choice as principal to succeed the late Prof. P. H. Elliott, has been appointed assistant professor of English at the University of British Columbia, Dean Daniel Buchanan, acting president, announced by telephone late today.

The dean further stated Dr. Deborah Aish, Victoria, who secured her degree at the Sorbonne, Paris, and has recently been lecturing at McMaster University, Hamilton, had been appointed assistant professor of French.

Dr. Robbins' resignation from the College is now on file at the school board office, awaiting formal acceptance by the board at its meeting next Wednesday.

Dr. Robbins, now conducting a summer school course at the University of Minnesota, will be returning to his alma mater. Graduating from Victoria High and Victoria College, he secured his B.A. and M.A. at U.B.C., before continuing his studies at the University of London and University of Toronto. He received his Ph.D. from the latter.

Trustee Austin Curtis, chairman of the city school board, today was unable to say what action the college would take to readjust staff and courses.

"I imagine we will know more about it when the education committee meets next Tuesday prior to the board meeting," he said.

The withdrawal of Dr. Robbins from the college marks the third senior school personnel loss suffered by the board in recent weeks. Two high school teachers, Harold P. Johns and H. C. Gilliland, had previously accepted provincial appointments.

Greater Victoria Commission Sought By Mayor, Reeves

By ARTHUR STOTT

Mayor Andrew McGavin, with Reeves W. L. Woodhouse, Oak Bay, and Thomas Hadfield, Esquimalt, today asked Premier John Hart that the provincial government set up a commission to investigate amalgamation of the two municipalities with the city in a Greater Victoria.

This, it was pointed out, is the first concrete step towards merging the urban areas. It was explained it was regarded as a measure which would eventually bring the inner wards of Saanich into Victoria.

"Reeves Woodhouse and Hadfield," Mayor McGavin said, "have definitely stated their desire to see the municipalities join the city. Saanich has yet to give the scheme its blessings.

"Establishment of a commission would provide the basis for scientific study of the amalgamation proposal. Creation of one municipality would have material benefits in community economy and would give Victoria a stronger voice in affairs of the province and the rest of Canada.

MANY ADVANTAGES

"It would increase efficiency and lower costs of water, health, police, fire and educational services, would tend to eliminate friction.

"The commission could give study to the questions of administration, to equitable distribution of debt charges, to the composition of a council which would govern the area and innumerable other problems which confront protagonists of a Greater Victoria.

"The action would also accelerate implementation of health and educational union moves. Groundwork for mergers in those departments has already been done through the proposed metropolitan health and metropolitan school plans.

"Among its many advantages would be consolidation of municipal rehabilitation work which, he added, would facilitate inauguration of projects for the benefit of men returning from overseas."

Vote for Strike

MONTREAL (CP)—Operating employees of the Montreal Tramways Company today voted to strike to back up their demand for a union shop.

President A. R. Mosher of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees (C.C.L.) announced the result of the strike vote which had been going on by secret ballot since 8.30 Monday night. He said that of 3,500 votes cast, only 70 opposed the strike decision.

It was thought likely announcement of the time the strike would start would be made tonight. There was no immediate comment from company officials with whom union representatives have been conferring in an effort to find a solution to the deadlock presented by the union demands for a union shop. The demands have twice been rejected by a federal conciliation board.

Scottish Wounded Send Thanks

"This letter," writes Lieut. D. J. A. McKenzie, 1st Battalion, Canadian Scottish from an English hospital, "will acknowledge 7,000 cigarettes that were received by me from Mr. MacAdam, Agent-General of British Columbia in London. The balance of 3,000 are at present still in his possession and will be distributed shortly.

"On receipt of the cigarettes from B.C. House I distributed them to officers and men of the regiment now in hospital in England, and I assure you they were greatly appreciated. Knowing they were sent from the women's auxiliary of the regiment added much to their enjoyment.

"I believe Mr. MacAdam has made arrangements regarding distribution of the remainder as it will not be possible for me to do so.

"May I take this opportunity on behalf of the boys in thanking you most sincerely for your thoughtfulness and kindness."

Subscriptions to the Scottish Comforts Fund cover cost of shipments of cigarettes to which Lieut. McKenzie, rear party officer, refers. Altogether 100,000 cigarettes are need for distribution among the wounded in England and the men of the regiment fighting in France.

Reported today:

E. D. M.	$ 2.00
Mr. and Mrs. Dawson Richardson	10.00
Major R. D. Travis	5.00

Previously reported, $2,119.73.

Subscriptions may be sent to Kay McIntyre, Times editorial, who is acting as secretary-treasurer for the Scottish Comforts Fund.

Work to Start At Once On Site Next to Jubilee

By NORMAN MACLEOD

OTTAWA—Pensions Minister Ian Mackenzie today announced the federal government will proceed immediately with the erection of a 250-bed hospital in Victoria for the Department of Pensions and National Health.

Site of the new structure will be in the grounds adjoining Jubilee Hospital. For the sake of speeding getting the undertaking under way, tenders are to be called almost immediately. The plans of the recently-erected addition to Shaughnessy Heights Hospital at Vancouver are to be used as the basic plans for the Victoria hospital.

Cost of the new structure is expected to run in the neighborhood of $742,000.

It was explained by Mr. Mackenzie to the Victoria Times correspondent that the new hospital is to be a permanent structure. While it is intended primarily for cases from the Pensions and National Health Department, it was said that accommodation might also be allocated for a certain number of army and air force cases.

The Royal Canadian Navy, it is understood, will not use the new hospital.

The project was said by Mr. Mackenzie to have passed through all the preliminary and final phases of official sanction, including approval of the necessary orders-in-council by the federal cabinet.

VICTORIA PROTESTS RECEIVED

An earlier dispatch today said:

OTTAWA — Victoria is going to get its military hospital to handle veterans.

This announcement was made today following arrival from Robert Knight, Canadian Legion official, of a telegram of protest against Ottawa's neglect of Victoria, along with the report of the protest speech of President A. Palmer of the Amputations Vets supported by an audience of 3,000.

It was decided to use without delay the plans for the new $500,000 addition to Shaughnessy Hospital begun last week in Vancouver, as the plans for the new Victoria structure, officials here said, now that it is indicated that Victoria veterans mean business in their demand for action. R. W. Mayhew, M.P., has been pressing the cabinet for immediate start on the hospital, so that construction here will go on simultaneously with that in Vancouver.

LEGION HEARS FROM OTTAWA

A message from R. W. Mayhew, M.P., and a wire from Hon. Ian Mackenzie confirming the Ottawa announcements were received by President Robert Knight of the Canadian Legion District Council today.

The site on the Jubilee Hospital grounds is the isolation hospital site near Lee Avenue and it had been offered without strings, Mr. Knight said.

"The offer was made 10 days ago and the decision to proceed follows a vigorous effort on the part of the Legion and others to have a hospital here so that sick and wounded veterans whose homes are in Victoria would not have to go to Vancouver for hospitalization," Mr. Knight said. "The fact that these veterans will be eager to be in their hometown and the heavy expense in traveling, hotel expenses and loss of time that their relatives would be put if they had to go to Vancouver to see them, were forceful points advanced in the representations to Ottawa for a hospital to be established here."

Harvest Leave

British Columbia soldiers will be given leave to farm prairie wheatfields under a new order issued today by Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, G.O.C.-in-Chief, Pacific Command.

Allied Advance Sweeps Into Brittany; British-Canadians 22 Miles Inland

ALLIED SUPREME HEADQUARTERS (CP)—U.S. forces carried the invasion of France into Brittany today, while east of the Vire River a speeding British-U.S. spearhead approached the key city of Vire and south of Caen, Canadians dominating Tilly la Campagne, battled fiercely against heavy German counter-attacks.

TOWARD PARIS

British and Canadian forces burst forth with new fighting on the Paris-pointed east flank of the advance line, and tonight U.S. troops were driving back the Germans without pause in the coastal corridor of the western offensive.

A front dispatch said U.S. infantry captured Brecey on the See River and pushed 10 miles southeast of Avranches to capture two key dams in the Selune River.

The biggest offensive of the invasion hurtled into its second week with augmented power. The Germans' trans-Normandy line was smashed in a dozen places. Disorganized Nazis yielded themselves as prisoners in droves.

To the east of the line British tanks and infantry drove forward 11 miles south of Caumont in 24 hours. East of the Vire River, in the central sector, they joined up with the U.S. drive southeast of captured Rorigny and speeded over tough, wooded ridges across the Souleuvre River only five miles from the key communications town of Vire.

On the way the British column captured Le Beny-Bocage, German hill stronghold eight miles north of Vire.

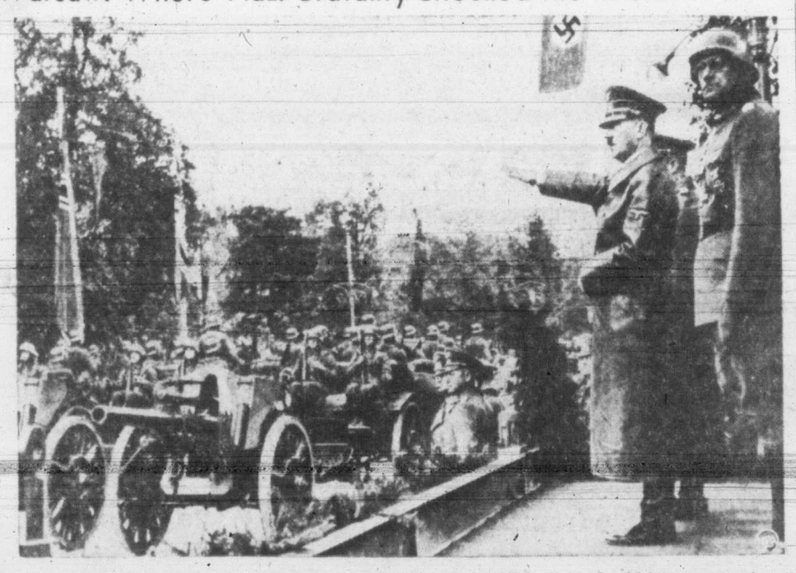
This placed the British-Canadian forces 11 miles south of their Sunday jump-off area around Caumont and some 22 miles inland from the English Channel. This was the deepest British penetration of the invasion.

CANADIANS TAKE TILLY

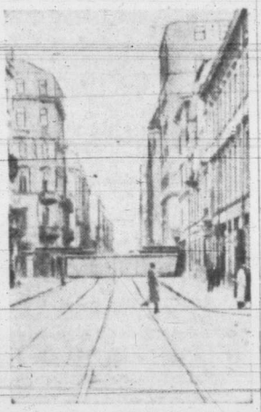
Canadian troops on the left flank east of the Orne River captured the bitterly defended Nazi strongpoint at Tilly la Campagne, more than five miles south of Caen.

A British column to the westward joined hands with U.S. forces at a point southwest of the Eveque forest, six miles southeast of Torigny-sur-Vire.

Warsaw: Where Nazi Brutality Shocked the World

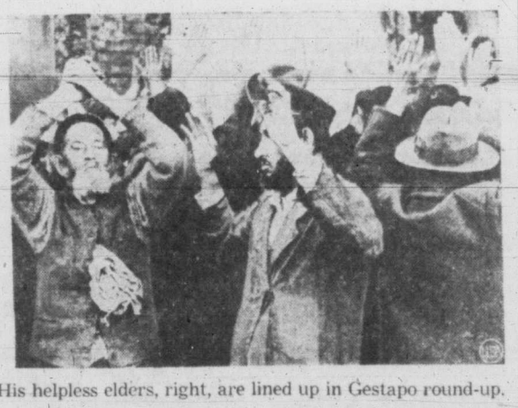


Parade of triumph, Warsaw, 1939. Now but a page for Hitler's book of bitter memories.



Poles flee homes burned by Nazis. Behind brick wall, right, is "black hole" Ghetto.

Jewish boy cleans Ghetto street.



His helpless elders, right, are lined up in Gestapo round-up.

On Sept. 1, 1939, when Hitler's armies entered Poland, Warsaw was that country's pride. "We will fight to the last drop of blood," radio Warsaw said. The first 11 notes of Chopin's Polonaise were repeated over the air on a studio xylophone every 30 seconds between announcements, to show that the city was still Polish. On Sept. 27, the Poles again spurned Nazi offers to surrender, but the next day, the Polonaise was no longer heard. Warsaw, burned, battered, starving, capitulated. Because Warsaw was the first great city to fall to the Nazis, their brutality as conquerors, which has since become grimly commonplace, shocked the world. Jews were herded into the Ghetto, caged behind an eight-foot concrete wall around the 100-block area. They were impressed into slave labor in the mines, and were forbidden the streets after 7 p.m. Poles and Jews alike who dared object to this treatment were beaten or shot, their homes burned to the ground; the Nazis spared them no imaginable indignity. Photos above show typical instances of how the conqueror treated the conquered.

LONDON (CP-Reuters)—Moscow reported today that the Germans are setting fire to Warsaw as the Red Army closes in on the town.

Heavy Air Cover For Praga Attack

By DANIEL DE LUCE

MOSCOW (AP) — Driving in from three directions under hundreds of Red-starved planes, Russian and Polish troops today attacked Praga, industrial suburb of Warsaw, across the Vistula River east of the capital.

Marshal Konstantin K. Rokossovsky, himself of Polish descent, personally directed the Red Army's mammoth assault on the Metropolitan area of the Polish capital.

One of the greatest artillery concentrations of the entire eastern front ripped into German entrenchments on the edge of Praga.

Warsaw, first United Nations capital to hear the roar of liberating cannon, also was threatened by flanking manoeuvres in which the Red Army struggled to bridge the broad Vistula southeast of the city, another column fought close to the stream on the northwest.

Front dispatches indicated the battle for Warsaw would be fiercely prolonged by the German command.

Rokossovsky, who had been building up reserves for a week, lashed forward with a co-ordinated air and ground bombardment.

(A Berlin broadcast said Warsaw remained calm, but added that "the roar of a tank battle can be heard in the city.")

The assault on Warsaw was virtually matched in importance by a three-pronged Red Army drive against East Prussia in a sector now 143 miles wide. Gen. Ivan Cherniakhovsy's command advanced 31 miles and approached to within 11.8 miles of East Prussia proper.

2nd Zoot-Suit Riot Brings 6 Arrests In Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP)—Six men arrested on vagrancy charges Monday night following the second night's skirmish in downtown Vancouver were remanded until Wednesday when they appeared in police court today.

The six youths, including five merchant seamen and one laborer, were arrested as city and service police answered half a dozen mob alarms in various downtown parts of the city.

Witnesses said merchant seamen paraded for five hours Monday night shouting, "We want zoot-suiters." However, there were no brawls such as occurred Sunday night when more than 1,000 rioters collected at a downtown intersection. The long-haired, drape-shaped zoot-suiters were conspicuous Monday evening by their absence.

Chief Constable Donald McKay of the Vancouver Police blamed a false report by a drunken merchant seaman for the street riots which have kept city and military police busy for the last three days breaking up hoodlum gangs on city streets.

"This merchant seaman reported he had been beaten up in front of a city cafe," Chief McKay said. "Police investigation revealed the man had been drunk and had fallen downstairs."

Finn Head Resigns

LONDON (CP)—President Risto Ryti of Finland was reported in a Reuter dispatch from Stockholm today to have resigned.

The dispatch, quoting reliable reports from Helsinki, said the new President was Premier Edwin Linkomies.

German Airfields In Paris District Bombers' Targets

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR

LONDON (AP)—Up to 1,700 U.S. planes, 700 of them heavy bombers, attacked German airfields south of Paris today.

British heavy bombers struck Monday evening and again Monday night at two widely-separated robot supply depots and a number of launching sites in northern France.

Before dark Lancasters and Halifaxes attacked one depot a few miles southwest of Reims and another in the Pas-de-Calais area, while continuing to bombard platforms from which the Germans fire robot raiders. Flying bombs fell intermittently in southern England Monday night and today.

In other operations late Monday R.A.F. heavy bombers pounded German naval vessels at Le Havre and the railway centre of La Roche, 65 miles southeast of Paris.

5-Cent Coffee Not to Return Yet

OTTAWA (CP)—Prices Board officials hold out no immediate hope for the return of a five-cent cup of coffee to Canadian restaurant patrons, although such action has been taken in the United States.

A dispatch from Washington Monday night said: The five-cent cup of coffee, an old institution which the war ended in some United States restaurants, is now back nearly everywhere. Only eating places which charged more than five cents for coffee in October, 1942, may continue to do so. All later increases to six or seven cents or more are abolished, thus extending to all states the "freeze" of restaurant prices.

Inspects Air Cadets at Pat Bay

Air Vice-Marshall Heakes, with Air Cadet WO1. Brooks, stops to speak with Air Cadet Cpl. Bruce Jubb of Esquimalt. R. H. B. Ker of Victoria, director of Air Cadets of Canada, is in background.

Three flights of more than 130 air cadets and a 30-piece cadet band were inspected by Air Vice-Marshal Vernon Heakes, air officer commanding Western Air Command, at their Patricia Bay camp Monday.

He praised the boys, including a number from Esquimalt, for their excellent showing and described them as "the air force of the future."

"You bear yourselves well indeed," he said. He congratulated the officers, N.C.O.'s and cadets, and the local committees that had sponsored the movement.

Arriving from Vancouver by plane, Air Vice-Marshal Heakes was met by Group Capt. D. B. Hobbs, officer commanding Patricia Bay station; Wing Cmdr. Blair Fraser, R.A.F., officer commanding the O.T.U. at the station, and Sqdn. Ldr. E. G. Symonds, air cadet liaison officer for Western Air Command and officer commanding the cadets in camp.

R. H. B. Ker, who has been active in the local air cadet movement, was in attendance.

Several members of Greater Victoria Gliding and Soaring Club, including Alderman B. J. Gardiden, president, accompanied the air vice-marshal in his inspection of the flights.

Watching the ceremony was Hermann Webber, assistant director for Metro-Goldwyn Mayer, who is here for the filming of scenes at the station next week for the picture "Son of Lassie."

The cadet parade was commanded by Cadet WO1. Robert Brookes, of Vancouver's No. 111 Squadron.

On Thursday, the cadets will break camp, which has been the last of three to be held this year at the station.

On its way to Vancouver, the band of No. 111 Squadron marched through Victoria to the C.P.R. docks by way of Douglas, Yates and Government Streets.

Used Car Regulations Tightened By Board

Tightening-up of regulations dealing with the sale of used passenger cars is announced by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board under Administrator's Order A-1305.

"The amended regulations are of vital interest to dealers and the public and it is hoped the new order will put a stop to certain 'racketeering' aspects which have led to many complaints being filed with the board," C. W. Brazier, enforcement counsel, said today.

One of the many points set out is that private sellers of used passenger cars must state in their advertising their name and address, their location, make, model, model year and serial number of the car, any accessories and the proposed sale price, which, of course, must not exceed the maximum prices permitted under the order. It is also forbidden for any person, other than a dealer, to require a purchaser to give in exchange a used car as a trade-in.

Any person selling a car must fill out a statement in triplicate. These documents must be witnessed and signed by the seller and the buyer. The seller retains one copy, one is given to the purchaser and the other must be filed within four days at the nearest local office of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board. No person, other than a dealer, shall purchase or acquire more than one used passenger car in any calendar year.

All dealers must display conspicuously a price tag which also shows the make, model, model year and serial number and accessories, including spare tire or tube. No charge may be made for accessories which are not listed in Schedule D of the order.

Under certain circumstances a dealer must sell a car for cash without requiring a trade-in of any other vehicle or asking the buyer to furnish any consideration other than the proposed selling price in cash.

The purchaser, to obtain a car under these conditions, must fill in a certificate stating that it is necessary for him to obtain a used vehicle and that he comes under classes A, B or C of Order 4 of the rubber controller. Allowances made on any trade-in must be just and reasonable.

All dealers must file an inventory to the nearest office of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board by Aug. 10 and thereafter, on or before the 10th day of November, February, May and August. This report must be in duplicate and show all the used passenger motor vehicles in his possession or under his control, together with such other information as may from time to time be required by the administrator.

The order came into force today.

Allied Communique 113

ALLIED SUPREME HEADQUARTERS (CP) — Communique No. 113:

In the western sector Allied forces which entered Granville have now cleared the town.

An advance on a broad front toward the main Percy-Avranches road has brought our troops close to Villedieu. There is heavy fighting near Percy.

Strong enemy resistance continues northwest of Tessy. We have made substantial gains in the Torigni-St. Martin area. Isolated pockets of resistance through the sector are being steadily eliminated.

Escorted heavy bombers attacked naval vessels at Le Havre and the railway centre at La Roche last night as our air forces kept up their pounding of enemy supplies and communications.

Medium bombers hit rail bridges crossing the Seine at Nantes, Tours and Les Ponts de Ce. Fuel dumps in the forest of La Gurche and at Tours, and ammunition stores southeast of Caen were bombed effectively.

Fighter-bombers on armed reconnaissance attacked railways, rolling stock, air fields and motor transport over a wide area.

Merriman Round-up . . .

IT WAS case of Jonah and the whale at William Head. A resident caught and killed a grass snake which was hanging around the fish pond with intention to do no good. A bulge in the snake's stomach called for a dissection. Laid open, it revealed a goldfish which, on being taken out, flipped its tail, was promptly thrown back into the pond, and swam off quite brightly. His friends probably didn't believe him in the pond's fish club that night . . . Although no one has found a cure for a cold Dr. E. Wrigley Braithwaite says colds can be avoided. The main thing is to keep in good spirits. Colds occur in a particular emotional state, he says, and can be aborted if a different emotional state can be produced. Cold, wet, hunger and exhaustion won't cause a cold in the absence of the appropriate emotional state, the doctor says. This may give the often-sought answer to the question why soldiers, living under conditions believed conductive to colds seldom suffer from them . . . A bachelor claims to have found the solution why a healthy baby cries. It needs the stick. But not the way you are thinking. When it is crying, he says, you will notice it raises a hand and curls its fingers. Give it a stick to hold and it will stop crying. Interesting if true . . .

A. P. ALLESBROOK who has a nephew a prisoner in Hongkong and another a prisoner in Burma comes to the defence of Canadian-born Japanese. Sentiments of the Japanese paper, The New Canadian, are those of loyalty and decency, he says. "I refuse to associate the bloody fiends of Singapore and Hongkong with the Japanese evacuees of B.C., very many of whom have won our warm friendship and respect," he writes.

CWACS, WRENS and AIR FORCE (W.D.'s) aren't interested in solving the domestic servant problem when they return to civilian life. The home training equipment provided under vocational plan is in storage. So far the girls discharged from the services have said they are not interested in learning how to do someone else's housework. Col. F. T. Fairey, regional director, asked if housework as a job couldn't be made more attractive, said: "Yes, you would have to train the employers." Victoria girls who do housework are reported to have their own unofficial blacklist of employers for whom they will not work . . . In the marriage-divorce discussion one correspondent asks: "Under what commercial contract does a party have to commit a criminal offense before a mutually distasteful association can be dissolved? "Our present marriage law," he says, "is a relic of the days when the church held the power of life and death over its subjects, days of witchcraft and persecution. Let us get as up to date in social conditions as we are in commercial."

WHO INTRODUCED muskrats on this island? At meeting at Cobble Hill, W. Barclay Hunton said that the game board had introduced muskrats onto this island so as to get more $10 trapper's licenses. This was denied by one of the commissioners, who added that the muskrats had escaped or been turned loose from fur farms on the island . . . Mr. Hunton quoted an old report that farmers need not be afraid of the introduction of muskrats onto the island as they would do no harm to their crops and that there would be a large increase in trapper's licenses. "First part of this statement was a deliberate lie, as I have a photograph of the damage they did to my field of oats," says Mr. Hunton. "They also ruined my drains; and the farmer who has any has to go to the cost and trouble of repairing the damage every year. It is a well-known fact that muskrats were introduced into central Europe, where they did an immense amount of damage to canal banks, etc. In England and Scotland some muskrats escaped from fur farms and hundreds of pounds was spent in exterminating them. If the game board did not introduce muskrats onto the island then they should have immediately put a bounty on them instead of protecting them. This clearly shows that the game commission was either grossly ignorant of the habits of muskrats or else chose to ignore the ordinary rights of property owners."

DURING de Gaulle's visit to Canada, one of his aides told the story of Georges Herriot, the ex-Premier who remained in France after the Nazis arrived, and continued to defy the then-conquerors. In the Chamber of Deputies, one day, Herriot was being taunted by Laval's collaborationists. One of them finally leaned over his bench and taunted Herriot: "And you were once a horse doctor, weren't you?" "Yes," said ex-veterinarian Herriot. "Why? Are you ill?"

HERE'S ANOTHER WAY TO HELP!
BUDGET YOUR SPENDING FOR VICTORY
The "Budget Calendar" will show you how—Send for free copy and join the Budgeteers!

THERE'S one simple thing you can do every pay day to strengthen the home front—and to bring Victory sooner. Plan just how you are going to spend each pay cheque before you spend it.

A big job for your dollars

Why is that so important in the war effort? The answer is simple. Your dollars—everyone's dollars—have a bigger job to do than ever before. They must help pay the enormous cost of the battle front—through war savings, taxes and contributions. But your dollars must also back up the battle front by helping to keep the home front strong. They have to buy the right kind of food, clothing, shelter and other home needs to keep your family healthy and productive. Production on the home front is what keeps the battle front going!

It's easier—far easier—to make your dollars to their wartime job if you plan your spending in advance. That's where The Budget Calendar can help you. This is a new kind of budget method that we developed as a service to Household Finance customers. So many other families are now finding the Budget Calendar helpful that we have decided to send a copy to everyone who requests it.

Here's a new way to budget

The Budget Calendar gives you a new way to go about budgeting—a way that makes your planning easy and simple. It doesn't ask you to fit your living into a fixed spending pattern—a pattern that may not suit you at all. Instead it shows you how to take the expenses you now have and how to plan to pay them with your wartime income. Family after family has told us that here, at last, is a budget plan that "really works." And it does away with tedious bookkeeping too!

Users of the Budget Calendar are invited to join the Budgeteers. Budgeteers receive a new booklet or letter from time to time to encourage them in their efforts. Their letters and questions are always welcome and receive personal answers. Special recognition is given to Budgeteers when they complete a full year of budgeting.

For many years families have been coming to Household Finance, Canada's largest and oldest Small Loans company, for help with their money problems. From our long experience has come The Budget Calendar. Don't you want us to send you a copy without obligation? You will receive no loan advertising or solicitation of any kind.

Mail to Prisoners Now Costs Less

OTTAWA (CP) — Postmaster-General Mulock announces postage rates on air mail letter forms for prisoners of war have been reduced from 10 cents to five cents. A similar reduction has also been made for special air mail postcards for writing to prisoners of war and civilian internees in the Far East.

D-Day Celebrated At Nome Air Base

(This story, telling of a D-Day celebration at Nome, was written by a Canadian Press staff writer on a recent trip to Alaska.)

By JACK SULLIVAN

NOME, Alaska (CP)—D-Day was V (for vodka)-day for Russian and American fliers at this base of the Air Transport Command, U.S. Army Air Forces, on the shore of Bering Sea.

Elated at news the Allies had invaded France, they turned this otherwise-quiet base, 1,967 air miles northwest of Edmonton, into a bedlam of song and good fellowship. The Russians, temporarily stationed at the base, supplied the extra-potent, Russian-made vodka.

Churchill was toasted—Stalin was toasted — Roosevelt was toasted. Britons, Russians and Americans were toasted. It was a "victory" party in huge letters.

Many stories are told of the D-Day party, but the most popular going the rounds centres around a U.S. officer who "buttomed up" a large-sized drink of vodka with a Russian friend.

The American downed the drink and then went down himself — face first. The party, minus the American, continued on its merry way.

Then everybody went to bed and, no doubt, dreamed of the celebration when V-Day rolls around.

Commons Discusses Family Bill After Dr. Bruce Ejected From House

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons Monday night adopted two clauses of the 16-clause Family Allowance Bill after a stormy scene which ended with the suspension of Hon. Herbert A. Bruce, P.C., Toronto-Parkdale, for the remainder of the night sitting. He was once Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario.

Dr. Bruce, who described the family allowance legislation as a "bribe of the most brazen character, made chiefly to one province and paid for by the taxes of the rest," refused to withdraw the word "bribe."

His appeal of the Speaker's decision to have made the withdrawal was defeated by a vote of 81 to 22, and then by a vote of 84 to 20 the House upheld Prime Minister King's motion that Dr. Bruce be suspended for the remainder of the sitting.

Dr. Bruce left the chamber after the suspension vote.

"I regret to say that I can not and will not withdraw my remarks," said Dr. Bruce.

The incident developed when Dr. Bruce, the only member to speak against the Bill and who was not present when the House last Friday unanimously voted for it, on second reading, by 139 to 0, put Prime Minister King's declaration about a statement made by John Bracken, national Progressive Conservative leader, to a test.

HON. H. A. BRUCE, M.P.

Mr. Bracken had used the same expression, and Mr. King said if Mr. Bracken had used the statement in the House he would have been compelled to withdraw.

CONTRARY TO RULES

—Deputy Speaker J. A. Bradette ruled the expression was contrary to the rules and asked Dr. Bruce to withdraw. The Toronto member refused and, as is customary, appealed to the House. Speaker J. A. Glen took the chair; Mr. Bradette reported to him.

The Speaker asked if the House wished to sustain the Deputy Speaker's ruling, and when he said the "yeas" had it after shouts of "yeas" and "nays," the Progressive Conservatives demanded a formal division.

C.C.F. and Social Credit members voted with Liberals to sustain the ruling.

One Independent member, A. W. Neill, Comox-Alberni, voted with the Progressive Conservatives in support of Dr. Bruce on both divisions, but other Independent members voted with the Liberals.

There was a stormy scene during the discussion, with members on both sides of the House trying to get the floor.

Pensions Minister Mackenzie said the chairman's ruling had been appealed, and the next step was to report the incident to Speaker Glen.

Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative House leader, got the floor on a question of privilege and said that acting chairman Golding had given decision on the incident prior to the dinner adjournment.

Hon. R. B. Hanson, P.C., York-Sunbury, N.B., said Mr. Golding had ruled that Dr. Bruce had not meant his remarks to be a reflection on anyone.

WHOLE HOUSE AFFECTED

Mr. King said Dr. Bruce's remarks were a reflection on every member of the House, and on a vote which had been unanimous.

Mr. King said Dr. Bruce was a man who came from a high position. He formerly was Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario (from 1932 to 1937), but he had used "offending language" and had committed an "indignity." He asked that the remarks be withdrawn.

Mr. Glen then asked Dr. Bruce to withdraw the word "bribe." It was then that the Speaker's decision was appealed.

The House had barely disposed of the incident when P. C. Black, P.C., Cumberland, N.S., said at the opening of a speech that he understood the bill had been introduced for its political affect rather than to help the poor families in the country.

Mr. King immediately asked that the remark be withdrawn.

Karl Homuth, P.C., Waterloo South, Ont., said it appeared that "we are getting pretty touchy in this House."

M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. Leader, said he thought Mr. King was walking on "pretty shifty ground" in asking for a withdrawal.

KEPT DECORUM

Mr. King said he desired to protect every member in the House and to maintain decorum. He had understood Mr. Black to say the bill was introduced for political purposes. Such a statement was out of order.

Mr. Coldwell urged that the House get on with its work.

Following the incident the House adopted the clauses of the bill defining those to whom allowances would be paid, and under what conditions.

Earlier, Progressive Conservatives repeated their request for a court decision on the constitutionality of the allowances bill, but Mr. King and Justice Minister St. Laurent reasserted their belief there was nothing unconstitutional in the measure.

J. G. Diefenbaker, P.C., Lake Centre; Mr. Hanson, Grote Stirling, P.C., Yale, were among those who urged the matter be submitted to the courts immediately for a ruling, because in their opinion the bill was an invasion of provincial rights.

Mr. King and Mr. St. Laurent argued that the payment of allowances out of public funds in respect of every child under 16 in Canada was withhin the powers of Parliament.

"There is no doubt in the world about the constitutionality of this legislation and the government was careful to have an opinion from the law officers of the crown to the effect that it is intra vires of this Parliament before introducing the legislation," said Mr. King.

NO RIGHT INVADED

Mr. St. Laurent said he could find nothing in the bill which invaded any jurisdiction given to the provinces.

Mr. King introduced an amendment to make it clear that children born overseas to fathers who are members of the Canadian forces would get the allowance on coming to Canada.

Howard Green, P.C., Vancouver South, asked why the allowance should not be paid to children overseas.

Mr. King said it was the opinion of the government the situation could be met under the dependents' allowance regulations. The intention was that family allowances should not be payable outside Canada.

Mr. St. Laurent said orphanages and homes would not be paid the allowances.

Stanley Knowles, C.C.F., Winnipeg North Centre, said he thought children in orphanages should benefit from the allowances.

Mr. St. Laurent said persons who had put their children in institutions would be entitled to the allowances, but they would have to apply the money to the maintenance of the children in the institution.

Children and societies would be entitled to allowances received by parents whose children they were looking after. However, the societies would have no direct claim against the government.

Brooke Claxton, parliamentary assistant to Mr. King, said about 600 treasury officials would be required to hanrle the proposed family allowance payments.

At present about 40 officials were required to handle about 100,000 cheques for dependents' allowances purposes and about 609,250 dependents' allowance cheques were mailed from Ottawa every month. It was estimated 1,500,000 family allowance cheques would be mailed each month.

Mr. Claxton said a field staff of about 500 investigators would be needed.

Prairie Town People Must Help Harvest

REGINA (CP)—Municipal Affairs Minister J. H. Brockelbank empasized today that the harvest labor supply from outside Saskatchewan this year will not meet the requirements and Saskatchewan citizens will have to dig in to get the crop off.

The government hopes, Mr. Brocklebank said, that businesses in the province will make an effort to get together and arrange to be closed for certain days so as to release management and staffs for harvest work.

If this method of co-operation does not meet the situation Mr. Brockelbank said the government would consider issuing a proclamation making the closing of businesses on certain days compulsory.

Saskatchewan Not To Repudiate

REGINA (CP)—Saskatchewan has no desire to repudiate its financial obligations, Premier T. C. Douglas and Provincial Treasurer C. M. Fines said here on their return from eastern Canada.

"We met some bond men to discuss generally the provincial credit situation," the Premier said. "We told them we had no desire to repudiate our debt nor to cut arbitrarily the interest rates if we could possibly arrive at some reasonable reduction in interest rates by other methods."

Mr. Douglas also reported 6,000 harvesters will come into Saskatchewan within a few weeks to help reap the province's crop. Among them will be air force men, soldiers and civilians from Ontario.

Power Lines Down, Kill 2 Calgarians

CALGARY (CP) — Howard James Boyd, 17, and Anthony (Steve) Boyko, 58, school board employee, were electrocuted Monday by high tension electric power lines blown down during the big week-end storm.

Boyko lost his life while trying to pull to safety the boy, who police say either fell across or became entangled in a 4,000-volt wire.

Russian Ferrying Fliers Popular With U.S. Force at Alaska Base

(This story, describing the daily life of Russian pilots at Fairbanks, engaged in ferrying U.S. lend-lease planes to Russia, was written by a Canadian Press staff writer on a recent trip to Alaska.)

By JACK SULLIVAN

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (CP) — The tenacity and fighting spirit of the Russian armies, displayed when the Nazis steam-rollered over Russian soil at the start of the Russo-German war, is reflected in Soviet fliers who ferry lend-lease United States-built fighters and bombers to the Soviet from the Ladd Field base of the Air Transport Command, U.S. Army Air Forces.

These men, who have engaged, and beaten, the Germans in many sky battles, fight hard and play hard. Many are decorated heroes and are here on furlough from the fighting fronts for relaxation. The job of piloting the planes to their homeland is more or less a diversion to them.

The indomitable spirit is best shown over a game of chess, at which they are expert. A player seemingly well beaten won't admit it or concede the game. He will battle to the last, always looking for an opening, and then move in.

PLAY POOL

Besides chess, their favorite recreation while on call is playing pool and the slot machines, studying a huge pin-pricked up-to-date map of the Russo-German front in the officers' club, and making their favorite dish borsch.

Their sharpshooting at pool, or "poosh ball," as they call it, wouldn't compare with their skill at the business end of a blazing machine gun, but they are dogged in their determination to improve their game. A misplaced shot usually is followed by a cue-thumping of the floor, vigorous shaking of the head, and a few well-chosen words.

Their aim is to do everything well.

NOT ARMCHAIR MEN

The war map is studied numerous times daily and almost invariably results in long discussions. But there is no "armchair strategy" — these men know the fronts in detail from combat experience.

Lieut. William T. Sledge of Kite, Texas, special services officer at the base, who can be found in his off-hours browsing around the Russian officers' club playing chess, and picking up a better-than-passable grasp of the language, sums up his impressions of the Russian fliers this way:

"I've found they are all very fine sports and gentlemen. They'll smile of a loss, because they know they have put up a good fight. They never give up; they fight to the last ditch."

The 40-year-old U.S. army air forces officer and Rhodes Scholar is keenly interested in the social welfare of the Soviet fliers. He found them "a little diffident" at first, but after a short time they soften up. If Anglo-Saxons and Russians don't jell, it is somebody's fault, and probably ours."

READ U.S. MAGAZINES

Some of the best American-Russian friendships have grown over the chess table, Sledge says. "All are curious about the Americans, read U.S. magazines and books and ply me with many questions." He smilingly recalled the day a Russian friend asked: "which magazine is the most popular in the United States, Time or the Daily Worker?"

The Soviet government has an office in the huge administration building, situated on the edge of the four-mile-long flight strip, which is ringed by the red star of Russia emplazoned planes. The men have their own quarters and club, but eat at the U.S. officers' mess.

The Russians share tables on one side of the mess hall and U.S. fliers occupy the other. This is explained by the language barrier.

The fliers are clean-shaven and youthful looking, averaging in age between 26 and 30. They are shorter than U.S. officers and men at the base, but are thick-set and broadshouldered.

The Russian uniform — high black boots, dark blue trousers, green coat and green cap rimmed with gold braid — is set off by a three-inch deep belt to which is attached an ominous-looking revolver.

Says War to End Aug. 4

HONEY BROOK, Pa. (AP)—William S. White, a Honey Brook businessman who predicted June 6 would be D-Day, forecast Monday that Germany will cease fighting Aug. 4. White predicts coming events as an advertising stunt.

Hay Crop Fails

PRINCE GEORGE, B.C. (CP) — The hay crop in the Mud River district is experiencing its first failure since farming was started in the valley in 1910. The crop is expected to yield only 25 per cent of former years. A shortage of feed for stock in the district is likely to result.

C.C.F. Ignores Russia, Tim Buck Charges

MEDICINE HAT, Alta. (CP) — "There will be no prosperity in Canada after the war unless there is co-operation with the United States and Great Britain, who have pledged their co-operation with the Soviet Union." Tim Buck, national leader of the Labor-Progressive Party, said at a public meeting here Monday night.

Criticizing the C.C.F., he said they refused to have anything to do with the Soviet Union, and that was why they ignored the need for foreign markets.

"The Soviet Union will have much to do with the formulation of the postwar world, and world prosperity and peace," he said. "That is why the C.C.F., through their national leader, Mr. Coldwell, publically state they will not co-operate in international postwar trade.

THOSE ROBOT PLANES

THROUGH THE APPLICATION OF A rigid censorship when the new terror of the air was getting under way the outside world obtained only fragmentary information about Germany's robot plane and its destructive potential. After Mr. Churchill had reported the number of casualties caused up to the beginning of last month, however, it became apparent to all those distant from the scene that Hitler's so-called secret weapon was a long way from a joke and far more serious than a nuisance.

This "Vergeltungswaffe" or reprisal weapon is now plummeting to earth in the London and southern counties areas with the force and concentration of an artillery barrage. It is true, of course, that it cannot be aimed at any definite object. Nor does the enemy seem specifically concerned with such consideration; he is depending for its major effect upon the amount of civilian chaos he can create by the indiscriminate destruction of life and property. Verbal and pictorial evidence of this kind of damage is conveyed in letters and by illustrations now reaching this continent in disturbing volume. The only consolation to be extracted from even the application of a more intensive technique is that this diabolical missile is causing little or no disturbance in the strict military sense—despite the fact that some aircraft, which might be even a much greater nuisance to the Wehrmacht than it is, must be diverted for continuous bombing of the platforms from which these packets of high explosives are catapulted.

Whether the Germans actually have a still more hideous and more destructive flying weapon in pickle—reports have it the "Vergeltungswaffe" No. 2, with a 10-ton explosive charge, is coming next—events may soon prove. Mr. Churchill will perhaps confirm or minimize these fears when he speaks tomorrow. It is nevertheless clear from British reactions to the use of the present model that the people of Great Britain, even those inclined to favor a "soft" peace for Germany, are developing fresh bitterness. This is understandable for at least one obvious reason. Experts affirm that this flying messenger of death and destruction is, technically speaking, an efficient piece of engineering and relatively simple to manufacture. Because of that alone, therefore, one of the paramount restrictions on postwar German industry must be the denial of such facilities as could easily be devoted to the manufacture of this or other similar weapons.

Such restrictions, moreover, do not exclusively concern the future of Britain's immunity from this form of attack. The present limited range of its performance naturally evokes the belief that unhindered intensive experiment might well produce a pilotless missile capable of use over great distances—even thousands of miles, with New York, for example, an easy target. So the Fuehrer's robot bomb may boomerang and add to the penalties for the Reich he will leave behind him.

M.P.'S INDEMNITIES AGAIN

THE MATTER OF INDEMNITIES TO members of Parliament has been up again at Ottawa. Members receive $4,000 a year, but from that the income department deducts as much as $1,480 a year. This has the effect of reducing the sessional indemnity to $2,520. Few members—and many have to give up their profession, business or other avocation—can afford to live in Ottawa during the long session and attend to parliamentary duties between sessions on this meagre allowance.

The members say that the Minister of Finance made the mistake in the first place of treating their allowances as salaries, which would naturally be subject to income tax, instead of indemnities made to cover their expenses. We believe the members are right, as we said some weeks ago. Supporting this view, the Ottawa Journal points out that it is against the law to pay salaries from the public treasury to members of Parliament unless they are duly appointed to a salaried office. But the income tax department is treating members of Parliament as though they were receiving an emolument by holding office under the Crown. However, at the same time, the department, quite properly, does not tax allowances made to employees of private firms, or to employees of the government, for that matter, to indemnify them for outlays on traveling or other expense accounts.

The people of this country are faithfully served by the men and women whom they elect as their representatives to Parliament. We expect them to put in long months in the national capital attending to public duties, which means sacrifice of their earning power at home. The least we can do is to see that they are indemnified for their living and other expenses while they are engaged on our business. Unless we do, it will be only the man or woman of independent means, or those financed by outside organizations, with special interests, who will be able to afford to run for public office. And that would eliminate many of our outstanding and most public-spirited representatives.

It is about time for the early bird that got the worm to turn it over to the chestnut.

NEXT, MR. BRACKEN!

WITHOUT A SINGLE VOTE RECORDED against it, the King government's Family Allowance Bill passed second reading in the House of Commons. It will later be discussed by the Senate. That the upper chamber will approve it can be taken for granted. Evidently the Progressive Conservatives had no compunction in supporting Mr. King's "political bribe"—the term attached to this legislation by Progressive Conservative leader John Bracken and a servile element of the press which supports him.

Nor was the opposition's vote surprising. Several of its leading spokesmen had unblushingly endorsed its spirit and intent during the debate on second reading. Vancouver's Howard Green based his consent on "the hope that it will benefit Canadian children and Canadian parents, thereby benefiting the Canadian nation as a whole." No silly suggestion there that "the bill is a bribe to help win the Quebec election for the Liberals," or that the "allowances will pauperize a large section of the population." The mainland city's member knew, of course, that the Speech from the Throne last January 27 included this:

"The family and the home are the foundation of national life. To aid in ensuring a minimum of well-being to the children of the nation, and to help gain for them a closer approach to equality of opportunity in the battle of life, you will be asked to approve a measure making provision for family allowances."

Had Mr. Bracken overlooked that six-months-old promise when he called the bill a "political bribe"? Or was he annoyed because he had no means of preventing such progressive legislation passing to the statute books under the aegis of a Liberal government? Even the Vancouver Daily Province tells us that what it calls "The Children's Charter" marks "a distinct advance in social thinking in Canada," adding that "if the bill works out in practice in accordance with the desires of the men who fathered it and voted for it in the House, it will prove a boon to families of low income in Canada and should not prove too great a burden for the nation to bear." But the mainland newspaper lists a few dangers, which it somewhat unduly labors, and winds up with this:

"Another danger that will have to be guarded against is the disposition of greedy employers, when the labor market will allow them to do so, to turn the benefit of the children's allowances away from the children and to themselves. They can do this by reducing wages. The bill will prove of little value to children if it serves merely as an excuse for cutting their fathers' pay."

We are of the opinion that very, very few employers in Canada will be guilty of that kind of practice. The advanced "social thinking" in this country of which the Vancouver Province speaks will cause any such individuals seriously to ponder before succumbing to a temptation to thwart the measure's intent.

GOING WELL

EVEN THOUGH IT MAY BE A TRIFLE too early to consider the present magnificent progress which the Allied forces are making in Normandy as the actual beginning of the Battle of France, the fighting lines are developing a bulge that before very long will deliver the composite forces of General Montgomery onto terrain in which easier movement will be possible.

It is this condition for which the Allied troop commander has been planning and striving from the moment his armies converted the initial beachhead into an invasion front. Of special importance at this vital stage, of course, is the intricate problem with which the Nazi commanders are confronted. The ever-haunting threat of another landing elsewhere on the French coast obliges them to apportion the disposal of reserves with the utmost caution, while they know that so soon as the battle is pressed into the more open country, General Montgomery will have the room he requires to employ to its fullest extent the vast reservoir of armor and guns he must have assembled for just such a purpose.

This fact alone leads to the confident supposition that the enemy will stop at nothing to prevent the great break-through which would completely change the character of the current developing operation. And the German high command knows full well, moreover, that once the Battle of France liberates larger expanses of territory, the installations now used for launching the robot planes would be threatened. The next few days, therefore, should reveal how far progress in the west will keep pace with the miraculous Russian drive toward the Reich proper.

'CLOSED FOR VACATION'

THIS SUMMER WE HAVE SEEN SHOPS and restaurants in Victoria notifying the public either through advertisements in the newspapers or cards in the windows that they are closing for one or two weeks while the whole staff goes on vacation.

This is a practice that is being followed across the country, and in the large cities of the United States. One national clothing firm has closed all its retail outlets from coast to coast as well as its distribution headquarters in Toronto for a fortnight so that its "overworked staffs may have an opportunity to get out into the sun and rest." A number of war plants have closed for two weeks, finding there would be less loss of time in doing so than in spreading the vacation season over two months with depleted staffs. Even a weekly newspaper, in Chilliwack, has suspended publication for a week as a vacation measure for its staff.

All this, of course, is a wartime innovation. It is due primarily to manpower shortage. Employers have decided that it is easier and altogether more satisfactory to close and dispose of all staff vacations at one time, rather than to attempt to work out a rotation of time off as was the custom in normal times. From all reports it appears to be working out well.

THE COMING CIVIL WAR

THE ATTEMPT on Hitler's life was manifestly not the act of a small band of assassins. It was a big inside job. Hitler himself described it as similar to the coup which overthrew Mussolini, and it is evident from his reference to "usurpers," and from the orders issued by Goering to the German Air Force, that this was, perhaps still is, an attempt to set up a new government.

The authors of the attempt must have been powerful and numerous. For only important members of the German army could have got through to the kind of meeting where the attack was launched.

On the other hand, it is a reasonable inference that this is not a clear-cut struggle between the army and the Nazi hierarchy. For if it were, if the army were united, the Nazis would easily have been arrested or killed. The lines of conflict run through the army, which is itself partly but not completely Nazified. If this is a correct inference, it is very important. For it does not foreshadow the elimination of a few Nazis and then the appearance of a German Badoglio, some German general expecting to be treated as the representative of a purged and regenerated Germany.

BEGINNING OF CIVIL WAR

HITLER'S SUPPORT within the German army and the German nation is much deeper than Mussolini's ever was in Italy, and it is reasonably certain that we are seeing now the beginning of a German civil war. There are powerful forces on both sides. The Nazis are not just a clique who can be ousted without a fierce struggle; neither are the instigators of the revolt the "extremely small clique" which Hitler said they were.

His own admissions go far to prove that they are a formidable force. By appointing Himmler and Guderian "we will now at last" deal with those who "constantly attempt to sabotage." Why at last? Why did he not appoint Himmler sooner. Evidently because the opposition in the army to Himmler's domination has for long been strong enough to prevent it.

"This time we will settle accounts in such a manner as we National Socialists are wont." Why this time? Why not sooner? Could "a very small clique of criminal elements" have prevented the Nazis from acting sooner? They must, on the contrary, be very powerful persons to have been tolerated by Hitler and to have held off Himmler, for so long.

They are clearly a formidable movement within the army. Otherwise, how could they be "trying," as Goering said, "to spread confusion among the troops by issuing false orders—as a new government of the Reich or as usurpers." What must be the condition of the German Air Force when Goering has to place all formations inside the Reich under his own personal orders and that of his new appointee, Col.-Gen. Stumpf, when he has to announce that "dispatch flights," which presumably mean carrying messages to the commands, "can be carried out only with my or his permission"? And how does it happen that, while Goering is issuing such orders to the air force and Admiral Doenitz similar orders to the navy, the Chief of the General Staff of the Army has had to be replaced?

ENVENOMED STRUGGLE IN SIGHT

IT HAS LONG been highly probable that, when Germany was confronted with military disaster, the old army would attempt to save itself and Germany by throwing overboard Hitler and the Nazis. But the old army is no longer the old army; it sold itself to Hitler by hoping to use him and to profit by his acts. Hitler, who is a cunning villain, has, however, entrenched himself within the army. The outcome, which now seems to be preparing, is that these two elements, enmeshed with each other, will go down together in a bloody, envenomed death struggle.

The Allies have not the slightest reason to shorten or mitigate this internal German struggle. For here are the makings of the only kind of defeat which can destroy not only the power but, what is even more important in the long run, the traditions of German militarism.

THE RULE OF SURRENDER

FOR THE ALLIES there can be no central German government which they could recognize as capable of surrendering for the whole Reich. The Nazi soldiers and their fanatical leaders cannot be surrendered by nominally non-Nazi generals. They will take to the woods and the hills and the cellars, and fight on.

As Germany breaks up, the rule of unconditional surrender will have to be interpreted as applying to regimental, divisional, corps commanders who can, in fact deliver into our hands as prisoners of war specific formations of German troops.

But we should not accept or encourage the idea of one general surrender: For no German authority which wishes to surrender will be much more capable than was Badoglio of giving effect to the surrender. Many separate surrenders, on the other hand, will mean that each unit which wants to surrender will have to fight its own way out of the Nazi power, and in this struggle, only by this struggle, will German Nazism and German militarism become thoroughly disgraced, demoralized and disintegrated.

SOUNDS QUEER, DOESN'T IT?

From Timmins Advance

The Advance has frequently asked that the names of pupils in school promotion lists should not be made up with the surname first and the Christian name following. The incongruity of this Chinese method is shown by three lines from one school report, these lines reading: "Kiss Nancy, Knot Dorothy, Orr Mary."

Today's WAR NEWS Analysis

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

The magnificent Allied drive on the Cotentin Peninsula has given us a fair answer to the old question of "What's in a name?" by turning the "Battle of Normandy" into the "Battle of France."

There's plenty in that new name. It's the difference between the confined area of the peninsula, which has badly restricted the British-U.S.-Canadian operations, and the freedom of the open hinterland leading to Paris—and Berlin. It's the difference between slow, gruelling progress toward the war's end and a quick rush to match the crushing speed of the Russian armies in the east.

CAN DEPLOY FORCES

In short, the significance of this victory is that the western Allies through superb effort finally have won sufficient space in which to deploy the vast forces at their disposal. That's of the utmost importance. We've been too crowded heretofore to put all our strength into a blow.

What happened Monday was that the U.S. forces in their great thrust through Granville and Avranches ripped out the coastal anchor on the southwest flank of the German line which ran approximately across the base of the whole peninsula. This left the enemy's coastal wing dangling dangerously in the air. Simultaneously the hard-hitting Canadian and British forces, on the other end of the Allied front, surged forward and levelled up the line.

The sum of this operation is that the whole German line is in danger of being outflanked on both wings and suffering a major disaster. This threat is increased by the fact that the Allies now are in position to use their big contingent of swift-moving tanks to better advantage, since they are leaving the terrible hedgerow terrain behind.

FACES DILEMMA

German Field Marshal von Kluge now is neatly pinioned on the horns of a dilemma. His inclination must be to fling in fresh forces and try to block the Allied advace before it spreads out, but if he does that he will be weakening the defences of vulnerable places along the coast where the Allies might swoop in and land.

For instance, the Hitlerites are maintaining strong forces in the Calais-Boulogne area, on the narrowest part of the English Channel, where they fear an amphibious assault. There's small doubt the Allies are ready to take advantage of any weakness which they deem suitable for exploitation.

As things are developing in Normandy, the Allies have the option of driving directly for Paris, or first of making a quick stab southward to slice off the Brest peninsula. This latter course would give them the second finest port in all France to be used in conjunction with neighboring Cherbourg to pour troops and material into France for the all-out push toward Germany.

This is one of the big moments in the invasion of France. Things should move rapidly from now on.

NORMANDY POPULATIONS

It may surprise many to learn that the better-known Cherbourg gateway for tourists in prewar days is smaller than Caen, the former normally having about 37,000 population and the latter 57,000.

ALWAYS TIRED — Yet Sleep Didn't Help!

Doesn't it feel swell to wake up in the morning clear-eyed, refreshed, full-of-pep? Yet so many, especially over 40, get up tired all over, with aching joints, never really feel their best.

The reason is often a common complaint—a system clogged with poisonous food waste. Like many people, you need help to clean out a sluggish system, get back pep and sparkle rightfully yours. The mild action of BILE BEANS is an effective aid thousands rely on.

Made from 10 pure vegetable extracts, Bile Beans are so gentle, yet effective, they are called "The Medicine That Wakes Up Nature". These small laxative liver pills tone up the system by stimulating flow of liver bile, so essential to good digestion and daily regularity.

Why not enjoy that "glad-to-be-alive" feeling every day? Try Bile Beans tonight—then sleep. Over 7 million boxes used last year, convincing evidence of how greatly they are helping others. 37

"The British Empire Feels Its Oats"

By DEMAREE BESS

READ THE BRITISH EMPIRE PLANS FOR THE FUTURE

Not so long ago it was freely stated that the British Empire had fallen to pieces under the impact of war, that its day was gone. This cabled report from London by Mr. Bess shows a different side of the question, for the Empire has actually been revitalized by this war. The British have taken a realistic view of postwar problems. They are anxious, too, for a great organization that will stabilize world affairs, but realizing that this solution must wait for war's ends, they are now adopting aggressive tactics aimed at consolidating the Empire.

Anita Thain, 82, Born Here, Dies

MISS THAIN
. . . an institution.

Anita Thain, for more than 50 years one of Victoria's leading music teachers and dance pianistes, is dead at the age of 82 years.

Born here in 1862, the year of the city's corporation, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. John Mount Thain, she attended St. Ann's Academy, where she studied music. The Thain home at that time was at Blanshard and Fisgard, Capt. Thain having brought the redwood for the house, fences and sidewalks from California when he arrived to make his home in Victoria in 1858.

From the time she was 20, until she neared her 75th birthday, Miss Thain was never far from a piano. She played at countless dances in the old Assembly Hall on Fort Street, and had the piano at Mrs. Shirley Simpson's dancing classes. During the 1914-18 war she was in great demand for dances at service centres, always donating her services with good cheer.

Most of the big house dances of the time saw Miss Thain at the piano. She kept thoroughly abreast of the times in her music and could play modern swing as well as old-fashioned waltzes. Through the years she had become an institution in the city's musical circles.

In 1937 when the City of Victoria celebrated its diamond jubilee, Miss Thain was one of the honored guests at various civic functions. She had not been well since that time.

Weddings

HALL—HORRILI

The marriage took place Saturday evening in First Baptist Church, Vancouver, of Mabel Marguerite, twin daughter of Mrs. R. Horrill, 507 Burrard Street, Vancouver, and the late Charles Horrill, and Eric Edward Hall, only son of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Hall, 1044 Pendergast Street. Rev. F. Williams performed the ceremony and Mrs. P. Jackson played the wedding marches. While the bridal party was in the vestry, Mrs. A. Bushby sang "At Dawning."

The bride was given away by Mr. Alfred Mace, an old friend of the family from Calgary, and wore a two-piece frock in dahlia pink silk crepe with navy veiling trimming her white hat. Her accessories were white and her corsage bouquet was composed of gardenias and blue forget-me-nots. The bride's twin sister, Mrs. Meta Lindsay, was matron of honor, wearing a navy blue silk suit with matching hat and a corsage bouquet of pink roses and sweet peas. Jack Watson of Vancouver supported the groom.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's mother, where out-of-town guests included the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Hall, and Mrs. A. Oldrey of Victoria; Mrs. F. Hatcher and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. A. Mace, Mrs. N. Hanson, all of Calgary. A three-tier wedding cake, made by the bride's mother, centred the supper table.

After a honeymoon up-island, for which the bride donned a navy blue angora topcoat over her wedding ensemble, Mr. and Mrs. Hall will reside in Victoria.

JAMIESON—PHILIP

At a candlelight service in the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, Vancouver, Wednesday evening, Jean Mary Laverne, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bryce Philip, 515 Dallas Crescent, became the bride of Sub. Lt. Donald Henry Jamieson, R.C.N.V.R., eldest son of Mrs. B. Jamieson, Vancouver, and the late J. Jamieson. Rev. George Miller performed the ceremony, assisted by Rev. Samuel Clarke.

A gown of blush ivory satin fashioned with a long-waisted fitted bodice, gathered skirt and long pointed sleeves was worn by the bride, who was given away by her father. Her full length embroidered veil was caught to a wreath of orange blossoms and she carried a cascade bouquet of sweetheart roses, pink carnations and white sweet peas, centred with a gardenia. Her only jewelry was a single strand of pearls.

Miss Pearl Anne Philip was her sister's bridesmaid, wearing a powder blue gown similar to the bride's. Her rose veil was held on each side by rose pink carnations and she carried a colonial bouquet of pink carnations and white sweet peas. Flower girl was little Anne Laverne Fetterly of Chilliwack, frocked in pale yellow hand embroidered chiffon, carrying a posy of pink and white sweet peas. Miss Mae Bell of Victoria and Miss Vera Morrison of Vancouver, who lighted the candles, wore twin frocks of pale green taffeta and corsage bouquets of pink and white carnations.

Sub. Lt. George Townsend R.C.N.V.R., supported the groom, and ushering were Bruce Dixon and Wm. Lambert. Miss Margaret Clarke played the wedding marches, Miss Andree Miller played a violin solo, and Miss Hazel Minor of Ontario sang "At Dawning" during the signing of the register.

A reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Morrison, Vancouver, where mothers of the couple assisted in receiving the guests.

Sub Lt. and Mrs. Jamieson left for a honeymoon in the Fraser Valley, the bride wearing a mustard wool suit with brown accessories and matching topcoat. The groom will return to his duties in the east and the bride will reside in Victoria.

Social Situations

The situation: You are speaking of a young man in the Army and someone asks his rank.

Wrong way: Say, "Oh, he's just a private."

Right way: Say, "He is a private." (Don't tell what he is and what he is doing with that qualifying word "just." It sounds both snobbish and ungrateful to speak of the men in our Army as "just" privates.)

CHILDREN SELF-CENTRED

Dear Miss Dix: I have three children whom I love very much, two girls, ages 14 and 10, and a 12-year-old boy. Sometimes they seem to love me very much. They are always planning surprises for me, rush to meet me when I return from work and are respectful and polite at all times. But whenever I ask small favors of them or send them on short errands, they whine and sulk and complain that other fathers do not do that.

I am sure that they are far from being overworked and I like to think that a father can ask his children to do things for him once in a while. Do you think my children have a dislike for me?

PUZZLED PAPA.

Answer: Certainly not. From your own account, they must be unusually devoted to you. The only reason that they whine and sulk when you ask them to make a small return for all you do for them is because they are children and selfish and self-centred and have no sense of any obligation to you. Children think about their fathers pretty much as they do about God, as the source from which all blessings flow, and it doesn't occur to them that they owe them anything but lip service or a perfunctory "thank you" now and then.

I doubt if children ever think of their father as someone who works hard to provide them with a good home; who goes shabby that they might have fine clothes; who never takes a vacation so that they may go off to camps in the summer. They just take him for granted as a specimen of the genus homo whose natural habitat is the office or the factory;—who has a queer fancy for old clothes, and who prefers the tail end of the steak and the backbone of the chicken. They feel that he was somehow provided by Nature for their convenience and it isn't up to them to make any returns for favors received.

Children have to be civilized and socialized, and you have to do it by making the youngsters, from their infancy up, do something for Pop besides working him.

It's a Baby Girl For the Chaplins

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)—A baby girl was born to Oona O'Neill Chaplin, wife of comedian Charlie Chaplin, at St. John's Hospital Monday night, Dr. Sheldon Payne announced this morning.

"They wanted a girl and they're both very happy," said Dr. Payne. The baby, weighing six pounds 11½ ounces, has not been named.

The physician said the 18-year-old mother and baby were doing well and that the 54-year-old father "got by pretty well."

Mrs. Chaplin, daughter of playwright Eugene O'Neill, and the film comic were married at Carpinteria, Calif., in June, 1943.

This is Chaplin's fourth child. The first, a son born to him and the late Mildred Harris, died in infancy. Two sons, Charles Jr., 18, and Sydney, 17, were born to his second wife, Lita Grey Chaplin.

Joan Berry, the comedian's former dramatics student, still has a civil action pending against Chaplin in which she seeks support for her 10-month-old daughter, Carol Ann, alleging he is the father.

Pat Bay Peaches Survive Despite Sports Venus' Homer

By ANNETTE SEYWRIGHT

At Victoria West Park last night the R.C.A.F. distaff department brought down the Sports Club Venuses by a score of 15 to 13, and went home happy. It was an unusual game and had the game lasted another several innings the tune may have been reversed for the service gals who had come all tuned up and raring to go.

The Pat Bay "peaches" managed to check in 10 runs before the Sports Club participated in the actual fun, but when they got on their horses, even Paul Revere would have been a dead loss.

The excitement began when Sports Club's own outstanding product, Terry Taber (keep your eyes on that gal), knocked a homer . . . and the only homer of the evening, fans! That they had dangerous rivals came as a surprise to the Pat Bay beautiful creatures and they had to get out their lipsticks and take notice.

We noticed some slick double play on second . . . quick thinking, eh what? Both teams kept changing their batteries during the evening, and they were not the regular ones. . . . And how about that first base decision . . . believe our eyes are failing us . . . or who am I kidding?

There will be a Yarrows vs. Adverts game at Lower Central tonight if Joe can pick up enough players for the Yarrows who got badly banged up in that Youbou game on Sunday. . . . One of the players came up with a shiner . . . and what are you doing for it "Dusty?" Miss Shortbottom was a victim of a field collision, and was carried off, while a Youbou girl twisted her ankle and was also out of the game for the day. Scores: First game, Yarrows 2, Youbou 7; second game, Yarrows 12, Youbou 2.

When Gen. B. M. Hoffmeister sent out from divisional headquarters the message that he wanted to see him, Maj. Mahony was under the impression that the C.O. wanted to talk over an experimental manoeuvre the battalion had been taking part in. He was never more surprised in his life when informed he had been awarded the V.C. "It was the company that did that job—not me," he said. "I don't deserve this." Commented a brother officer, Maj. Tingley Lectures On Astronomy

The 3,000 stars in the heavens which can be seen by the naked eye and which do not appreciably move their positions, are the stars whose paths are marked by the navigator, Cmdr. H. R. Tingley said in the first lecture on "Introduction to Astronomy," at the 13th annual summer series given at Victoria College, Monday night.

He outlined the charting of stars that guide the seaman and the flyer, and said that because the earth's position was changed about 30 degrees each season, it was better to learn how to find a star than to memorize its position.

"An idea of the magnitude of the universe can be gained from the fact that while light from the sun comes to the earth in eight minutes, that from the larger stars takes eight years to travel here," Cmdr. Tingley said.

The celestian day is four minutes longer than the solar day, and therefore sidereal time gave one day more than solar time, he said.

O. M. Prentice, president of Victoria Centre, Royal Astronomical Society, introduced the speaker. Dr. K. O. Wright, astronomer at the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory, announced the next meeting would be an outdoor observation at the home of H. D. Day, 1240 Tattersal Drive.

CODY BECAME RIDER FOR PONY EXPRESS AT AGE OF FOURTEEN

Helen Cody, a sister of Buffalo Bill, told about her 11-year-old brother's feelings after he shot and killed an Indian. She said that he felt sad, and could not understand why the men in the party raised a cheer for him. Yet he believed that it had been the only thing to do. If he had not fired his rifle, the Indian might have shot one of the cattle men.

The members of the party were glad when they got back to Fort Leavenworth. The Indians had fired many arrows at them, and several had been wounded, but the only white men who suffered death were the three who had fallen during the first Indian attack.

Young Cody rode for the pony express

The Indians had driven the cattle into a stampede, and all of the animals had been lost. It was supposed that some cattle took up a wild life on the plains, perhaps joining a buffalo herd.

Will found himself quite a hero in his home in Salt Creek Valley. Some persons spoke of him as "the boy Indian killer."

Isaac Cody, his father, had died, and the family had to get along as well as possible on the farm. Will was employed by a company to help guard herds of cattle which were being sent westward. For this work he was paid as much as $40 a month, and he gave most of it to his mother.

During a few months taken from his work, the boy went to school. He failed to shine in the classroom, however, and went back to the task of watching cattle.

After reaching the age of 14, young Cody had a new adventure. He became a rider for the "pony express".

Most of those who rode in the pony express were well-grown men, but this husky boy was taken on for a trial. Soon he proved that he was as good a rider as the men.

The pony express was a mail service which ran from St. Joseph's, Mo., to Sacramento, Calif. It was opened in 1860.

Each rider was given a stretch of about 45 miles to cover, changing "Indian ponies" twice along the way. Cody carried letters and small packages on the route for more than three months. The whole trip of 1,960 miles was made in 10 days.

Music

AUDIENCE THRILLED BY YOUTHFUL ARTIST

By HELEN TOOTH

The public and the musical world are destined to hear more of a youthful Vancouver violinist who played to students at the Summer School in Victoria High School Monday.

Gordon Staples, 15-year-old pupil of Gregori Garbovitsky, who came to Victoria with his young protege, thrilled and astounded the audience with his masterly musicianship, his mature interpretation of a long and difficult program, and the sensitivity of his playing.

One goes to a program starring a young artist such as Gordon, prepared to listen tolerantly but not to be so overwhelmed with the beauty of his playing that none of the usual superlatives seem adequate for him.

Miss Annette Coates, also of Vancouver, played the accompaniments, and she proved a talented and sympathetic accompanist.

In all five of his program numbers, Gordon's bowing had a sureness that few older and more experienced violinists ever achieve. His rubato passages and his double stopping were amazing in their perfection.

The Ballade et Polonaise de Concert, by Vieuxtemps, proved the most popular with the audience. The young artist's brilliant technique was displayed in the sparkling Polonaise Brillante, No. 2, by Wieniaski, and the exciting Havanaise, by Saint-Saens.

He seems to have the happy knack of playing his selections as the listener is sure the composer would have wished them played. This faculty was particularly evident in the Concerto (A Minor) by Tartini and La Folice, by Corelli.

Displays Shown At Summer School

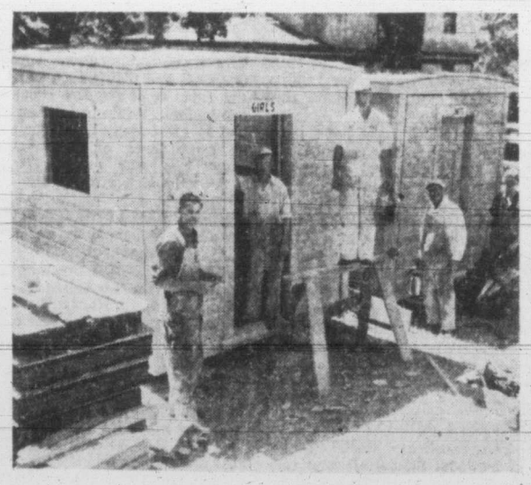
As the summer school session nears its close this week, a number of classes in teaching methods have put up displays of teaching aids in five different rooms at Victoria High School.

The class in school housekeeping is setting up a model classroom in Spring Ridge School, which will be open for students to view all day Thursday and Friday.

In an effort to find out the future aims of students taking courses at the summer school, and also to get suggestions about courses that may be wanted, a questionnaire is being distributed at the school and students are asked to fill it in before leaving on Friday. They are also asked to give any criticisms they may have about the manner in which the school is administered.

Dutch bulb growers are reported to be doing everything possible to keep the stock intact and in condition and their business alive.

Dressing Rooms for Park



Dressing-rooms for the children at Beacon Hill Park are being donated by the Trades and Labor Council to the Council of Social Agencies for use in the park. Members of the Painters' Union, Local 1163, and the Carpenters' Union, Local 1598, have donated all the labor that has gone into building the two fine dressing-rooms during their spare time.

Pictured above putting the finishing touches on the buildings are, left to right, Charles Chivers, president of the Trades and Labor Council, who has supervised the building; N. Howarth, Frank Dewhurst, Art Hudson, Charles Davis, assisted by his young son, Jack, and Louis Fletcher. Harry Yetman, another carpenter, also did a great deal of work on the dressing-rooms, but was not present when the picture was taken.

Lumber used in the buildings was donated by the Cameron Lumber Co. and Moore & Whittington; the paint by the Paint Supply Co. and hardware by Hickman-Tye. Heaney Cartage Co. will haul the dressing-rooms to the park tomorrow from Purcell Place, where they have been built.

Inside the buildings, which have been built in sections and bolted together so they can be dismantled and stored if necessary, there will be shelves, lockers and coat hooks. They are on skids so that, if desired, they can be moved from one park to another.

Says Mr. Gold Seal

"I'M AT MY BEST WHEN THE CHIPS ARE DOWN"

"I'm a much more determined character than I look: You see, I have an inborn sense of responsibility. That's why, in addition to devoting our machine-shop exclusively to armament specialties, I accepted the challenge of wartime shortages and went all-out to maintain the quality of my product, Congoleum Gold Seal Rugs and Congoleum by-the-yard. I reflected that by thus assuring a dependable source of colourful, cheery, work-saving, budget-easing floors, I would in my own quiet way, be doing a real morale job. And thousands of Congoleum fans across Canada, seem to agree with me."

CONGOLEUM GOLD SEAL Rugs

HOW TO HELP MR. GOLD SEAL MAKE GOOD

You can get added wear out of your Congoleum floors with very little effort. Brush and mop them regularly and renew the brightness of their surface with an occasional waxing. Make sure too, that the floor underneath is smooth and free from crevices or knobs. If it's a rug, move it every few months to "spread" the traffic. Yes, a little care will pay big dividends.

Dominion Holding 'Song of Russia'

Even Hollywood's severest critics must doff their chapeaus to this bit of perfect casting!

When M-G-M needed someone to appear as the radio announcer in "Song of Russia," John Nesbitt, Passing Parade commentator, was given the assignment.

But wait! The role requires that he explain the Tschaikowsky score highlighting the concert sequence of the picture, now at the Dominion Theatre.

Not only is Nesbitt an ardent admirer of the great Russian composer, but he owns one of the most complete libraries of Tschaikowsky recordings in existence.

To complete the harmonious cycle, the main title music on Nesbitt's Passing Parade films is always the same — Tschaikowsky's Fifth Symphony!

Robert Taylor and Susan Peters are co-starred in the film. An added attraction for the next three days is "The Falcon Out West."

PLAZA THEATRE

Hollywood has turned the tables on servicemen who seem to be having quite a time for themselves balloting their favorite screen actresses. There's hardly an army, navy or marine post that hasn't announced their selection for pin-up girls calling them "the girl they'd like to submerge with," "the girl they'd like to fly to the stratosphere," etc.

Reversing the procedure, the girls in the cast of Edward Small's hilarious farce, "Up in Mable's Room," which will be held over again at the Plaza Theatre through United Artists release, selected Chief Gunner's Mate Jimmy Fitzsimmons of Washington, D.C., as "the man they'd most want to find up in Mable's room."

RIO THEATRE

"Corvette K-225," now at the Rio Theatre, tells the dramatic story of those "Broncbos of the Atlantic," the roughest-riding craft in the world, which roll and pitch so continuously that seamen say they would roll on wet grass.

CAPITOL THEATRE

Betty Grable loves the boys—and how the boys will love Betty—in 20th Century-Fox's new technicolor musical triumph, "Pin Up Girl," currently at the Capitol Theatre.

The film stars Betty, the gal in the hearts of a million servicemen, and features John Harvey, Martha Raye, Joe E. Brown, Eugene Pallette, The Skating Vanities and Charlie Spivak and His Orchestra.

CADET THEATRE

Directed by Busby Berkeley, "The Gang's All Here," 20th Century-Fox's new entertainment hit, starring Alice Faye, Carmen Miranda, Phil Baker and Benny Goodman, was produced by William Le Baron.

This gay, romantic musical in technicolor is now at the Cadet Theatre.

ATLAS THEATRE

It's a "jill-opy" full of rhythm and roars when "Four Jills in a Jeep" hit the road to the Atlas Theatre today. Featured in the 20th Century-Fox hit are Kay Francis, Carole Landis, Martha Raye and Mitzi Mayfair, with Jimmy Dorsey and his orchestra, and introducing Dick Haymes of radio fame. Guest stars appearing in this scintillating cast are Alice Faye, Betty Grable, Carmen Miranda, and George Jessel who acts as master of ceremonies.

YORK THEATRE

Dialing two of the screen's more brilliant stars for the first time, "Lucky Partners" presents Ronald Colman and Ginger Rogers in the stellar roles.

Cast in tailor-made parts, Colman depicts a Greenwich Village artist, while Miss Rogers portrays a store clerk in the New York art colony. A platonic honeymoon trip for the two stems from a partnership purchase of a sweepstakes ticket and produces the merriest set of sparkling situations seen this year.

Spring Byington, Jack Carson and many other noted players have important roles in this RKO Radio Picture directed by Lewis Milestone, and now being shown at the York Theatre.

Letters to the Editor

REVENGE!

I just read in Monday, July 24, Times, p. 7, "A Dutch Soldier Speaks."

I want to thank you for the publication of what goes on in this man's mind, since, as he says, the same thoughts are occupying millions of other minds!

Love may be, and undoubtedly is, the greatest force on earth, but the hatred which the Germans and Japs have engendered in the occupied countries, and elsewhere, will have to run its course till just retribution has been meted out to the criminals before love, and time, can heal the wounds!

Those millions will not wait for the "courts of justice" to be set up, one of which some have seen at work in "None Shall Escape"; there are too many yet of the Neville Chamberlain appeaser's type who would let the criminals off easily if they had their way; and those millions are not going to take such chances again!

And, if you like it or not, other millions will want to be sure that those in all countries who helped the Germans and Japs to start the war—because it was profitable to do business with them—cannot repeat their nefarious practices after a few short years! If those interests will not mend their ways, those other millions will find a way to square their account with them!

Those who have kept themselves aloof from the realities of this world upheaval will not be able to grasp what is going on in this Dutch soldier's mind. If they had close relatives or friends victims of atrocities in the overrun countries, they would understand, unless they are too selfish to care at all for a fellow human being. The time will come that they have to "open their minds" if they have any beginning of a mind in their makeup!

RUSSIAN ADVANTAGES

Your excellent editorial "Source of National Strength," was very timely. With news of brilliant Red Army successes arriving almost every day, we are in danger of overlooking the Soviet Union's less spectacular, but more fundamental, achievements.

Personally, I would go even further than you do, and credit the Soviet Union's enlightened educational policy with being, not merely "one" of the prime sources of its national strength, but with being the principal one. It is clear that any country that systematicaly sets to work to discover and develop the natural abilities of all its citizens gains a tremendous advantage over the rest of the world, where, even in the more progressive countries, the opportunities of the great majority of young people to obtain the best education they are capable of assimilating are limited by economic and other obstacles.

Let us hope that the example of the Soviet Union's achievements will not be lost on us. No country can afford to waste the talents of its rising generation.

Before closing may I corect an omission in my last letter to the Times. In it I was made to say, "In Hungary, for instance, Communists have formed the United Labor Party . . ." It should have read: "Communists and Socialists."

T. H. TOYNBEE

Letter From Normandy:

Canadian Tank Officer Takes Booby Trap As Souvenir

Capt. Ivan G. Patrick . . . "war's misery shows in shelled towns."

Robot bombs over England, the incessant gunfire and the rain in Normandy, the Norman peasants who have lived under Nazi rule for four years are all described by Capt. Ivan G. Patrick in a letter from France to his wife who lives at 748 McClure Street.

A former Yorkton, Sask., school teacher, Capt. Patrick, 35, was a member of the 16/22 Saskatchewan Horse in peace time, and was mobilized with them in 1940. He trained at Dundern, Sask., and was stationed at the coast before going to England in May, 1943. He went to Normandy with the Second Canadian Armored Brigade. Capt. and Mrs. Patrick, with their young son, Stuart, plan to make their home in Victoria after the war.

GERMAN DEAD

"We are dug in again at another quarter," he writes, "and are quite comfortable, rainproof, at least, with a goodly amount of earth and scrap iron overhead. Sometimes it does not smell any too sweet because there are parts of Germans in the sand bags overhead, as we dug in a hurry. They are good fellows, quite dead and under control.

"I was amused at an English officer just over, who remanded some of our lads about a helmet they have stuck up on a post. He said: 'I've just finished two courses in England, and you must not pick up souveniers, unsafe, etc., etc.' One of the lads said: 'It is O.K., Sir, we took the Jerry out of it first.' I've collected some booby traps found here and there, quite clever things which take quite a toll if not properly handled. The mines are pretty well all cleared out and those uncleared parts are marked by signs.

TRADING WITH NORMANS

"I've just returned from a little shopping or trading expedition with the peasants using some left-over salmon from last night's rations. I saw some of the fish as I went for breakfast, and as the cook said it was to be thrown out, I put it in a mess tin with some real butter and fried it along with some cracker crumbs. Then wrapping mess tin and all I started off for a trade and got three eggs; pretty good stunt, don't you think?"

DOODLE-BUG DAMAGE

Suppose you know all about the doodle-bugs by this time; they are a terrible thing and cause great damage, contrary to what is said about shooting them down so easily. We have had them fall all around us, but were fortunate to be missed. You can hear them coming from a great ways off and if it is dark can see the exhaust of red fire shooting out behind. While in London we had an alert every half hour and at least three or four would come into our sector. It is a pathetic sight to see the old folks and kids going to the shelters. Terrific news, too, for the others to come home and find things flattened out. One little village near us had every house damaged by a doodle-bug.

Now I am in Normandy and sitting under a tree in a nice cool spot. By our outward appearances there does not appear to be a war on except for the continued drone of planes and incessant gun fire. Two of us had a little tent made up, not very big, but at least a place out of the wind and daily rain.

Close by is our slit trench, a narrow trench to duck into and safe from practically anything but a direct hit. The peasants go about as usual, working on their land and in the gardens very surprising to see the country life so normal. Crops are wonderful, and all about us here is wheat as high as my breast and it has big full heads.

ACCOUNTED TO NAZIS

The Germans allowed them to grow crops, gather hay and with certain restrictions live quite normally, although having to account for all food. A few feet away is a big garden, well kept, which looks no different from ones at home. We get vegetables from the folks, except potatoes, which are scarce. Kids come around looking for chocolates and other odds and ends. Quite cute they are, too. I was surprised to find so many cattle about, grazing quite happily in the fields and along the streams. They are well fed and far superior to much of the stuff seen at home.

In Bayeaux this morning I purchased good dairy butter, unrationed, cheese, cabbage, vinegar, onions, artichokes. As I was waiting by my jeep a French woman stopped and gave us a drink, for which I gave her a couple of cigarettes. I did not see any damage in this city. The shops look quite normal and people move about freely, but remember this is the great farming part of France, and, being agricultural, is more or less self-supporting.

WOODEN SHOES

Most of the people's shoes have wooden soles, hinged to be flexible. But they have a something in wearing their clothes, and know how to be chic and use their cosmetics nicely. I looked at some smart women's hats, straws, felts. Hard to believe, but true, and saw dresses of good style and material, but like everything else, very, very expensive.

I actually cannot see any random German destroying just through here, and it seems they were quite peaceable with the inhabitants. Don't get the idea this is general, because I have seen and been in places blown to hell and destroyed with all the hate and fury of which they are capable.

And everywhere the misery of war is to be seen in shelled towns, the graves, the wounded and homeless. We don't like the snipers and mortar fire; also their deadly 88mm., but we can match them, anyway, having gone through the coast forts and other defences. The navy did much in taking them out.

Nicotine-metal double salts, particularly those containing certain copper and zinc combinations, seem experimentally to be effective insecticides and suited to commercial production; they are being developed and tested by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

BASEBALL fans who have been clamoring to see a real good team in action, certainly got their wish Saturday. That Coast Guard outfit from Seattle was just about the classiest collection of diamond stars to ever show here. They had everything and the two lop-sided scores were no disgrace to the local all-stars. The games demonstrated the big gap between amateur ball players and those who have had the advantage of professional coaching.

FROM MY STANDPOINT the highlight was the three-inning pitching trick turned in by big Bob Chesnes, formerly of the San Francisco Seals. The right-hander treated the fans to a real fast ball and showed how to really break off a curve ball. Marvin Rickert at first base for the visitors was just about everything any manager could ask for, while Ray Orteig at third made every play look so easy his ability was lost to a lot of the spectators. Understand the coastguarders want to come back again Labor Day. They would draw just as well for a repeat performance.

FRIDAY will mark the 50th anniversary of one of the greatest figures in the history of baseball. I refer to Connie Mack, beloved owner-manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, whose golden anniversary as head of the A's will be marked by baseball leaders with a celebration. At the ripe age of 81, Mack is the same soft-spoken person he has always been. Time and baseball's ups and downs have wrought no changes in tall, lean erect Cornelius McGuillicuddy—to give him his full name.

IT SEEMS strange that when Mack took over the Pittsburgh team of the National League, the American League was not even in existence. Managers have come and gone while great stars have blazoned the headlines and passed out of the picture but Connie Mack continues on. No person ever associated with baseball has won such respect from players, officials and umpires as Connie Mack. He occupies a place in the baseball world that is his alone.

DESPITE his 81 years Mack has an exceptionally alert mind. Red Smith, Philadelphia baseball writer, recently told of an incident that typifies Mack's fast-thinking. The Philadelphia Athletics were playing the Cleveland Indians. Oris Hockett was on third base, Lou Boudreau on second and the batter hit a ball to the pitcher who trapped Hockett off the bag. Eventually both Indians arrived at third base. However, Hockett stepped out toward left field, yielding the base to Boudreau. Both men were tagged, but Umpire Joe Rue called only Hockett out. Mack beckoned Rue from the Philadelphia bench and the umpire went running. Only one man of the thousands in the park saw the play correctly. It was Mack.

WHEN HOCKETT stepped beyond third into left field," he said mildly, "Boudreau was closer to the plate than Hockett. Therefore Boudreau also is out for passing a base-runner and it's a double-play." And that's the way Umpire Rue called it.

HERE ARE a few more questions for the baseball do you know department:

1. Who was the only player to win the home-run championship of both major leagues?
2. Who was the only pitcher to lead both major leagues in winning percentages?
3. What pitcher holds the record for beating a club the most times in a season?
4. Who was the only pitcher to hurl a doubleheader shutout and against what team?

I'll give you the answer tomorrow

Should Revive Lacrosse In Canada

Needs Good Promotion

By SYD THOMAS

TORONTO (CP)—Lacrosse is usually referred to as Canada's typically-national game, even if it now has fallen to the rear of popular approval, but there are numerous enthusiasts throughout the land who would like to bring it back to its onetime peak of popularity.

Such a one is Vince (Winnipeg Tribune) Leah, who would like to see Canadians get behind the game and boost it to the skies through organized national promotion as has been done for baseball in the United States.

Lacrosse, in his opinion, got its black eye through the failure of officials to keep it clean and above-board. As a result, the fans became a trifle leary of the way the game was run, and it lapsed into obscurity.

Give it some good legislation, and get it organized on a community basis, with everyone playing from youngsters up, and it would go over in a big way, says Vince.

After all, now that the U.S., as well as Britain and other European countries have taken hockey to their bosoms, lacrosse is Canada's only hope for a truly national game at which her players can excel.

DIFFERENCE OF OPINION

There's a slight intramural dispute in the Montreal Star over the somewhat distant question whether the Olympic Games should be resumed as soon as possible after the war. Baz O'Meara thinks it will take some years for the feeling of hatred in the world to die down so the events can be resumed in amicity. But his companion columnist, ex-Olympic contestant Myrtle Cook, wants them resumed as soon as possible. The British sporting blood, she says, won't let them stay out of any world games, no matter how provoked they might be at their present enemies. Anyway, it's a question that isn't too urgent for a while.

INCIDENTALLY

Winnipeg is supporting soccer in pre-war style these days. A crowd of 1,500 is not uncommon in the gallery when the football boys do their stuff at the 'Peg. . . . Golf is getting more and more popular in the Maritimes. The New Brunswick-Prince Edward Island tournament drew a record entry list this year.

Lawn Bowling

First and second rounds of the Barnard Cup competition were played at the Victoria West club over the week-end. Semifinals will be played Saturday, starting at 2. Consolation rinks for those defeated in first two rounds will be held at 7.

Mack Predicts Big Boom for Baseball When War Is Over

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—"And when the war is over," Connie Mack penned, "I look for better, more exciting baseball played by more skilful men before greater crowds than we ever have known."

It was part of Connie's own story of his 50 years as a baseball manager. The game's great will help him celebrate at a New York Yankees - Athletics game here Friday night.

Connie, writing for the Philadelphia Inquirer, recalled that "when I first took hold of the Pittsburgh club" in 1894, ball players were "rough, tough and uncouth" and "we were not welcome in first or second-class hotels.

"Third - class hostelries," he added, "received us only when we promised not to eat with other guests."

As players have progressed in sociability, he said, "just so has baseball advanced in speed, cleverness and appeal," until now "as a group today's players are faster, smarter and more skilful. I am speaking of baseball before the war," he explained.

Connie called the Jimmy Collinses and Tris Speakers "the Orville Wrights and Robert Louis Stevensons of the diamond and different age," and said "the DiMaggios and the Ted Williamses are the super-bombers of a faster, more mechanized age."

MAKES NEW FRIENDS

"Attendance should soar" after the war, he wrote. "Even now baseball is making millions of new friends, young friends and women friends. . . . Night games have done much to popularize baseball. . . . Whether night games will be increased after the war I don't know. I feel that any team should not play more than 14 home night games under the lights. Nevertheless I believe baseball will give the fans what they want."

Connie recalled that he broke up "my first great Athletics team in 1914 because of the high salaries offered my players by the outlaw Federal League," and that he broke up "my second great team, champions of 1929, 1930 and 1931, because the overhead was so great."

"Many persons think I am rich," he said. "I am not. I have to make baseball pay the same as any other business man. I wish I even could say that I am out of debt."

Connie Mack Names All-Star Ball Team

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Here is Connie Mack's all-time all-star team of living baseball players:

Walter Johnson, pitcher; Lefty Grove, pitcher; Mickey Cochrane, catcher; Bill Dickey, catcher; George Sisler, first base; Eddie Collins, second base; Hans Wagner, shortstop; Frank (Home Run) Baker, third base; Babe Ruth, right field; Tris Speaker, centre field, and Ty Cobb, left field.

The team was chosen by Mack at the request of a committee planning a celebration at Shibe Park Friday night in commemoration of Connie's 50th anniversary as a big league manager. Its members have been invited to take their places on the Shibe Park diamond as a feature of the jubilee.

Fletchers Win Boxla

By the narrow margin of 8 to 7 Fletchers defeated the Navy in Monday night's box lacrosse game. Going into the final quarter trailing by three goals the bluejackets managed to tie the score at 6 to 6, but Austie Cullin fired a pair of goals to give Fletchers a win.

Eagles' Playoff Hopes Fade

Lose to Navy 9 to 5

Moving into an 8 to 1 lead after two and a half innings, Navy defeated the Eagles 9 to 5 in Monday night's ball game, and were back in a tie with the Army for second place in the local league. Wednesday night the bluejackets will oppose the Army in a game that will determine which club is to take over the runner-up spot back of the top-place Victoria Machinery Depot. It will be "Navy Night" so the tars will have plenty of supporters on hand for the important engagement.

Last night's defeat dropped the Eagles deeper into the cellar and lessened their chances of making the post-season playoffs. The lodgemen have two games remaining in the schedule, while the fourth place R.C.A.F. have three and are two games on top. The Eagles and Flyers meet once more and it is possible the game may prove the determining factor in deciding which club goes into the playoffs.

Navy lost no time getting the jump on the Eagles and, with the aid of some sloppy work by the feathered tribe's infielders, pushed across two runs in the first inning, four in the second and another pair in the third. They closed out their scoring with a single in the fourth. Eagles sneaked across a lone run in the first and made their final effort to get back in the running with four in the third. The clubs played shutout ball the last five innings.

FOUR PITCHERS WORK

Navy surprised the fans by sending Bobby Weigand, former first baseman to the mound, but he lasted just two innings, during which time he gave up five runs and a like number of hits. He was replaced by Jimmy Ingamells and the tall fellow had one of his best nights, allowing two hits and no runs in seven innings. He struck out four.

Ray Maitland opened on the mound for the Eagles but, like Weigand, worked only two innings, being relieved by Bobby Prior. Maitland failed to get much support in the field and was charged with a couple of costly errors himself. He was nicked for five hits and eight runs, and walked a pair. Prior allowed eight hits but kept them scattered and only one run was scored off him.

Eddie Runge, formerly of Hamilton, made his initial appearance at first base for the Navy and the big fellow handled himself well and celebrated his debut by doubling home the Navy's first two runs.

Fielding gem of the night was provided by Ray Moretti when he took Funk's foul fly in the fourth, deep in left field, and then doubled Ted Maitland at first with a beautiful throw.

With three for four Ted (Uncle) Parkins, Navy shortstop, paced the hitters.

Short score follows:

	R.	H.	E.
Navy	9	14	11
Eagles	5	7	4

Batteries: Weigand, Ingamells and Bartko; Maitland, Prior and Funk.

Burrards Fail To Show for Lacrosse Fixture With Army

VANCOUVER (CP)—Another protest against inclusion of the Army team in the league was made last night when Burrards carried out their threat and refused to play Army in a scheduled Intercity Lacrosse League game.

Salmonbellies were suspended and forfeited $100 bond when they failed to show up last Friday to play Army, and Richmond has given notice to the commission that it will not play the soldiers Wednesday.

The Army went to the forum last night and scored one goal to make things official. In the meantime, the three insurgent clubs met to discuss the situation and drafted a letter to the commission declaring they are prepared to finish the season after Army has withdrawn.

If the league is not suspended in the next few days, the lacrosse commission will meet with club representatives Monday in an attempt to thresh out the situation.

Browns-Sox Bolster For Pennant Drive

Washington's mid-winter pennant boom vanished in thin air today as the Nats hit the American League cellar while the St. Louis Browns and Boston Red Sox, once a couple of also-rans, loaded up for the stretch drive.

St. Louis acquired catcher Tom Turner from the White Sox via the waiver route to bolster Frank Mancuso and Red Hayworth. Boston picked up Rex Cecil from San Diego. The Pacific Coast strike-out king will report before Aug. 14 to give Tex Hughson a hand in the department that has been the club's glaring weakness.

The New York Yankees, currently in third place by 5½ games, seek a new catcher to replace Rollie Hemsley, who will be inducted Monday.

Washington dipped into the basement last night after bowing to St. Louis, 3 to 2. Homers by Vern Stephens and George McQuinn helped Jack Cramer take the nod over Roger Wolff, making his first start in a month.

Boston kept pace with the Brownies by shading Cleveland 1 to 0 on an unearned run in the ninth. Mike Ryba and Red Barrett, who relieved in the last frame, yielded only two hits, as did the Tribe's Steve Gromek.

Philadelphia pushed past Chicago in the 10th, 3 to 2, as Hal Epps' single followed Buddy Hall's triple to give Russ Christopher the win over Orval Grove. Detroit and New York were not scheduled.

Brooklyn's Hal Gregg ended a two-month victory famine by beating St. Louis, 6 to 1, his first win since May 30.

Chicago took its seventh straight, 5 to 1, on Hy Vandenberg's three-hitter as the Phillies bowed for the ninth in a row, but the Cubs failed to reach their first division goal as the New York Giants topped Cincinnati, 9 to 7.

Fritz Ostermueller of Pittsburgh stopped Boston, 9 to 2, with two hits, trimming Nate Andrews and chiming in with three hits for the cause.

COAST LEAGUE

If the fast-climbing Sacramento Solons continue an early season record they should fatten their Pacific Coast Baseball League standings again this week against second-place San Francisco.

The Solons, who moved from last to sixth place last week, have won 10 and lost four in competition with the Seals this season. Willie Werle will open for the Seals tonight in an attempt to retrieve his record of four losses against no wins against the Solons. He faces stiff competition in Clem Dreisewerd, who has won four for four.

The tobogganing Seattle Rainiers meet a likewise slipping Oakland nine at Oakland, and Hollywood opens against San Diego in other league play tonight. Portland and Los Angeles open tomorrow night.

In command of an armored troop south of Tremoli, Italy, a lieutenant from Victoria was badly wounded in the leg and thigh when his tank was disabled by enemy gunfire. Although in great pain and unable to get out of the tank, he managed to throw smoke grenades to conceal the position of his crew until they could evacuate the tank. The officer's courage and presence of mind, while seriously wounded, resulted in protecting his crew from further injury from heavy gunfire. He was awarded the Military Cross.

Independence for Canada Hinted At By C.C.F. Chief

QUEBEC (CP) — National C.C.F. leader M. J. Coldwell, digressing from a prepared text, told a political rally here that "Canada must play a part in the international field, but how shall we be able to play our part if we simply belong to another organization and we are not completely ourselves?"

Mr. Coldwell was addressing a meeting held in favor of the four C.C.F. candidates in the Quebec district at the next Aug. 8 Quebec general election.

Earlier in the day Mr. Coldwell and Mrs. Angus McInnis, member of the British Columbia Legislature and wife of the C.C.F. member of Parliament for Vancouver East, held a meeting at nearby Donnaconna, but the speakers were unable to obtain a hall and held the meeting in a field, addressing the crowd from a parked truck.

Mr. Coldwell said that "what we have done for the war effort, we must now do for peace."

He said that progress of the C.C.F. had been such in the last few years that "it has become today the only Canadian political party which is national in scope," adding that only the C.C.F. has candidates in all provinces under the same banner."

'Bushed' R.C.A.F. Men Have High Morale

A WEST COAST R.C.A.F. OPERATIONAL BASE — There are well over 1,000 airmen on the strength of this remote station carved out of the dense bushland on the west coast of Vancouver Island—and every single one of them boasts he is "bushed" from his long stay in the wilderness.

But there is more pride than sorrow in most of their claims.

The men responsible for the station's morale claim that it is higher than that of most stations closer to civilization.

Harry A. Renfree of Victoria, Y.M.C.A. supervisor, came here from a field close to Vancouver, and this is what he has to say about bush-station morale:

"I don't think there is any comparison. I don't like being separated from my wife and family, but I think the spirit and cooperation here are twice as good as in town. The boys here have to make their own fun—and they make it."

Here are some of the ways in which they make it:

They make leather watch straps, ashtrays out of sea-shells, lockets from scraps of perspex from damaged aircraft windshields, in such volume that a hobbies club is being started to procure supplies and tools and possibly market their products.

The station boasts many artists. Second prize in the recent Empire-wide air force art contest went to a man from this station—LAC. Peter White, since posted elsewhere. LAC. Al Desser of Winnipeg, who was born in Poland, draws fine portraits. LAC. Jack McLean of Vancouver specializes in landscapes. LAC. J. W. Pelletier, former cartoonist for a Montreal newspaper, plies his old trade as a hobby now. LAC. D. McBride of the hospital staff is a portraitist. So is LAC. Marce Mayhew, who works in the officers' quarters. LAC. Bruce Brown of Vancouver produces professional greeting cards in his spare time.

As a result an art club is to join the hobby club soon.

"There is a glee club, and half its members serve Sunday as a choir in the station chapel, raising the singing far above the usual air force church parade standard.

There is talent of other sorts, too—for example LAC. Bill Griffiths, a tap dancer, who has appeared all over the United States.

A sports field with football and lacrosse goals and a softball backstop has just been hacked out of the bush. The recreation hall boasts, in addition to the usual basketball and badminton courts, a good stage, movie projection booth, library and writing room.

Sydn. Ldr. G. E. Huggett, station administrative officer, announces that more bush will shortly be cleared for tennis courts and for a swimming pool.

B.C. Forests Still in Danger Brief Shower Does Little Good

Despite today's fairly heavy shower, there is no relief in sight for B.C.'s forests, and the hazard remains as great as ever, officials of the government's forest branch said this afternoon, as the sun came out and the weatherman could see nothing in prospect but continued warm, dry weather.

Latest forest closure order, signed by Premier John Hart, as Minister of Lands, follows:

On the mainland, north of Knight's Inlet, on the east coast of Vancouver Island, north of Suquash, and on the west coast of the island, west of Great Central and Sproat Lake watersheds and north of Alberni Canal, logging operations are prohibited from noon to midnight daily, except in rainy weather, when operations may carry on only under permit from the district forester.

In the remainder of the Vancouver forest district, which includes Vancouver Island, logging operations are prohibited except in rainy weather, and then only under permit from the district forester.

In all Vancouver forest district, all sawmilling and other industrial operations in or within a half mile of any forest or woodland are prohibited except under permit from the district forester.

In the whole of Vancouver forest district, travel in the woods for recreation, camping, fishing hunting, berrypicking, prospecting for minerals, or any other like purpose is prohibited, except under permit from the district forester.

All fire permits issued under the Forest Act are suspended during the present emergency.

The public must use the utmost care and vigilance, say forest officials, if serious damage to the woods is to be avoided.

Indian, Hunted By Armed Posses Frantically Seeks Wife's Grave

FORT ST. JOHN, BC. (CP)—Philip Durocher, 35-year-old Indian trapper sought in connection with knife-slaying July 19 of his wife, Shirley M. Durocher, has been seen several times near this town.

Dogs and posses have scoured the country for Durocher, who at one time was sighted in the town cemetery where he supposedly was searching for his wife's grave.

Jack McLeod, settler near here, who talked with Durocher, brought police a suicide note from the Indian in which the latter said he would not be taken alive.

Mrs. McLeod told police the man had appeared at her home, his eyes bloodshot and haggard from exhaustion. He had asked for tobacco and bread, and then wanted to know if his wife were dead.

New Finn Attempt At Peace Foreseen

STOCKHOLM (AP)—A new attempt to force resignation or ouster of the pro-German government of Finland in favor of one which could make peace with Russia was reported imminent here as German positions in the east deteriorated from the Baltic states to the Balkans.

Informants said that throughout the week-end, groups opposed to Premier Edwin Linkomies were laying plans to rid the country of the government which signed up Finland for solid military collaboration with Germany.

Information slipping through the close Finnish censorship to Stockholm said Marshal Baron Mannerheim and President Risto Ryti had held a long conference in Helsinki during the last few days.

A note bordering on panic crept into the heavily censored Helsinki press comment. One paper wrote almost sarcastically of the latest Nazi propaganda phrase "offensive defensive."

Racing Strike Off

VANCOUVER (CP)—A threatened strike of grooms at Hastings Park races was avoided today when the Racing Association granted the stable hands' request for a bonus of $2 for leading a horse to the paddock before each event.

Those who handle winning horses will each receive $5.

Ease Up On Beer

REGINA (CP)—After Oct. 1 an easing of the malt shortage in Canada may bring more beer to Saskatchewan people. Provincial Treasurer C. M. Fines reporting on his negotiations with Ottawa officials said that a 10 per cent increase in Canadian malt supply would likely materialize this fall.

Thousand Attends Youth Variety Show

More than 1,000 attended the first variety show for young people put on by the Victoria Committee of the Canadian Youth Commission in the Douglas Street Cycledrome. The commission plans on making the shows a regular Monday night feature for the duration of the summer.

Majority of the performers appearing last night were from the Summer School, aided by music from Bill Bryson's seven-piece orchestra.

Loma Mackenzie acted as master of ceremonies, led the community singing and sang several solos. Other singers were Frances Taggart and Peggy Anderson.

One of the highlights of the program was the hula danced by Mrs. Mary Jane Andrews, who is instructing at Summer School. Noel Parker and Earl Matheson did a clever parody of Russian ballet.

A group from the summer school also performed a Russian dance and an old-time square dance.

The "jive" contest, final item on the program, had 12 pair of contestants, and was won by Harry Kergen and Eileen Ferrie. This and the pie-eating contest were directed by Alfred Worthington.

Donations of prizes and the loan of a public address system were made by city businessmen. Ernest Lee, physical education instructor at Summer School, assisted in the program. It is planned to instal floodlights for next week's show.

Other Youth Commission members in charge of the show were: Alma Malcolm, Dulcie Malcolm, Ruth Farquhar, Margaret Mc Meekin, Muriel Pendergast, Allan Baylis and Rene Davies.

A dance will be held by the Canadian Commission on Saturday evening at the Y.M.C.A.

Gordon Head Camp To Be Used For Wounded Soldiers

Gordon Head Camp will be used by wounded servicemen during their convalescence, it was learned today.

After the men have been discharged from hospital they will go there for a period of training to fit them for their return to civilian life.

Gordon Head Camp was originally constructed for the training of recruits for the active army. Later it was converted into an officers' training camp, and thousands of young Canadians entered there as men in the ranks and emerged with one pip on their shoulders. Once the supply of officers reached a point where Canada was able to turn over large numbers to the British the camp was closed.

When the Canadians were withdrawn from Kiska one battalion was stationed at Gordon Head. After several months, during the time the Kiska boys had leave and were re-equipped, the battalion left the camp.

RESERVE ARMY THERE

This summer Gordon Head has been used for the first time by the Reserve Army. Units from Victoria and Vancouver have been spending two weeks there and undergoing stiff training. This is the first time these units have not spent their summers under canvas.

Gordon Head has plenty of huts and large buildings and these will be put in condition for the new phase of this camp's life. Men who have suffered wounds which will make it impossible for them to resume their former work, or young Canadians who went into the services from school, will receive instruction there if they desire.

It is expected that Victoria will play an important part in the rehabilitation work, owing to its favorable climate. The Colwood Golf Club is now operating as a centre for nerve-tired aircrews of the R.C.A.F.

Sea Cadets Leave For Summer Camp

Nearly 100 Rainbow Sea Cadets, ranging in age from 12 to 18, lined the rails of the Ss. Princess Alice as she pulled out from the C.P.R. docks at 1.20 this afternoon to take the cadets on their way to the two-week summer cadet camp at Whytecliff, Vancouver. Ashore, the Royal Canadian Navy Band played the boys away.

Previously, the cadets had mustered in front of the Parliament Buildings with the band and marched down to the docks for embarkation.

At camp, the cadets will go under a complete schedule of training which has been drawn up identically to the training routine now in effect in the R.C.N.V.R. training divisions across Canada.

BUSY DAYS

This schedule will keep the lads fully occupied from the bugle call "Fall In for Classes," which is sounded after morning divisions at 9.30, until "Secure" is sounded at 4.30 in the afternoon.

They will get field training, which includes exercises in platoon drill, company drill, rifle drill and general parade ground procedure according to the naval handbook for field training.

An important and interesting feature of training will be instructional cruises aboard H.M.C.S. Malaspina. During this training, cadets will be divided into watches and each watch will be given instruction, in rotation, on anchors and cables, boat-work, compass and helm. During the last half of instruction, they will stand short tricks at the helm as quartermaster.

As sea cadet summer-camp period is the ideal time for giving instruction to cadets in practical boat-work, swimming and life-saving, emphasis is laid on those activities. All instruction will be given under proper and competent supervision.

R.C.N.V.R. INSTRUCTORS

At the camp, nearly 60 R.C.N.V.R. personnel are on hand to supervise the training, victualing and general welfare of the cadets. A fully-equipped sick bay under the charge of a surgeon lieutenant and a sick-berth petty officer is maintained. Either the medical officer or the petty officer is available 24 hours a day, seven days a week, to attend to any cadet who may become sick or injure himself.

Menus for the cadets' meals were drawn up in Ottawa under the direction of Surg.-Capt. C. H. Best, famous as the co-discoverer of insulin. So, parents may rest assured their boys will receive a properly balanced diet.

In addition, the camp officials realize the need for rest is great at the age of most of the cadets, and have included regular rest periods in the daily routine of the camp.

Building Over $2,000,000 In Greater Victoria Area

Civilian construction in Greater Victoria rode over the $2,000,000 mark during the first seven months of this year, figures released by the various building inspectors today disclosed.

Saanich led the parade in both monthly and seven-monthly totals, recording construction worth $91,450 during July and $912,710 for the year to date.

Victoria was second with values of $76,097 for the month and $806,094 up to July 31.

Oak Bay listed projects valued at $38,300 during July, raising its cumulative total to $277,716.

SAANICH

Of the 55 permits issued in Saanich last month, 22 were for houses listed at $74,850 in all. During the similar month last year 45 permits were issued covering $29,990 worth of work, including eight houses worth $12,325. So far this year the municipality has issued 507 permits for work valued at $912,710, including 143 houses costing $149,550. For the corresponding period last year, 255 permits were granted for total values of $137,133, including 37 houses costing $44,665.

VICTORIA

In the city the influence of new regulations, whereby only 100 permits for homes are issued a month throughout B.C., made itself felt in July. Last month only seven new dwellings were among the 51 projects valued at $76,097 for which permits were granted. In July of last year there were only seven home permits, but other work included in 67 undertakings sent values up to $127,991.

Despite the July recession the cumulative figures for the year to date disclosed 85 dwellings among 492 projects worth $806,094. At the similar date in 1943 18 dwellings were listed among the 424 undertakings worth $503,743.

OAK BAY

Oak Bay doubled its home construction in July in comparison to work in the similar month last year. Last month eight dwellings of a total value of $38,000 were among the 12 projects listed at $38,300. In July, 1943, four homes worth $16,900 featured 10 projects worth $18,853.

Since the beginning of the year Oak Bay has granted permits for 115 jobs, valued at $277,716, including 60 homes worth $267,695. For the equivalent period in 1943, 61 permits were issued covering values of $115,360, including 12 homes listed at $48,650. The average cost of houses in that municipality this year rose to $4,461, against $4,054 last year.

In Esquimalt construction totalling $8,350 during July boosted the aggregate since January to $37,125.

Seven permits were issued in Esquimalt this month for construction costing $8,350. There were two dwellings and one alteration to a dwelling at a cost of $7,900. July of 1943 saw only four permits issued for dwellings costing $4,940.

Thirty-three permits for construction totaling $37,125 were issued in the municipality from January 1 to July 31, as compared with 24 permits for construction costing $23,748 for the period January 1 to July 31, 1943.

Popular Playwright Here After South Pacific Service

Coming back to civilization after six months with the United States navy in the South Pacific, gives a man the feeling that everyone he sees is his friend, says Yeoman First Class Earle T. Crooker, naval veteran of World War 1, and playwright, who gave the musical world the lyrics for the ever lovely "A Waltz Was Born In Vienna." He is in Victoria with his wife, on a 16-day furlough, and is staying with his aunt, Mrs. J. O. Cameron, 1262 Rockland Avenue.

Of his experiences with the navy, he would say nothing, but he told of his work in musical comedy and drama, work that he is carrying on with in a small way, and which he will go back to after the war, because "it's the only thing I know."

"It's good to be back and just see people," he said quietly.

Enlisting in the U.S. navy at the age of 17 in 1917, Mr. Crooker remained with that service for two years after the war and then did newspaper work for three years. Embarking on a theatrical career seemed the natural thing to do for a young man whose family for generations had been in the theatrical business. He numbers among his uncles Thomas Meighen and Charles Winniger. The prominent Hollywood director, Edward Sutherland, is a cousin.

In addition to musical comedies and operettas, including among them "Great Lady," which starred Irene Bordoni and Tullio Carminati on Broadway, Mr. Crooker authored a mystery melodrama, "Zeppelin," in which the well-known Rose Hobart took the leading role. He has written many songs for Bea Lillie, songs that are a part of her regular repertoire.

"I would like to write a good serious play, but I have not had success in that line. Like all comedians I want to be serious. I'm fiddling with a serious drama now entitled 'Homecoming,' and have one and a half acts written," he said.

When asked if he had done any work in the navy along entertainment lines, he said: "No," adding that he purposely avoided that for he wished for sea duty.

Success of a play, he said, depended on many things, with the combination of the "right play at the right time with the right star and the right director" the ideal set-up.

"The public is a darned good critic," he said. "The plays that have had that have flopped, have flopped because there was nothing there. Somewhere between the writing and the presentation, something slipped up."

Robert Sherwood, author of such hits as "The Petrified Forest," and more recently "There Shall Be No Night, Mr. Crooker considers tops in the American playwrighting scene today. Mr. and Mrs. Crooker make their home in Carversville, Penn.

Extra Pumper Due, But No Fire Barge

Provision of an extra 500-gallon-a-minute pumper for use in Victoria harbor is recommended by Gen. Alex Ross, director of civil defence, in a letter in which he turns down Victoria's representations for a fire barge.

Mayor McGavin expressed appreciation for the pumper offer, but was disappointed in the refusal of a fire barge.

Gen. Ross' letter to W. C. Mainwaring, chairman of the provincial civil defence committee, forwarded in copy form to the mayor, explained the position taken by the Civil Defence chief.

He explained why he had recommended provision of three fire barges for Vancouver.

"There are a number of other ports in Canada which would have claims as good as those of the City of Victoria, all of which would have to be considered and provided for in the case of an extension of the present basis of supply of equipment," wrote Gen. Ross. "I find myself unable to class the port of Victoria, important although it is, in the same category as Vancouver and Halifax, and therefore am unable to make a recommendation in connection therewith. With a view, however, to augmenting the defence of the port, I am arranging to make available a 500 g.m.p. pumper for use in the harbor area, and shipping instructions will be given at once. It will be thoroughly understood that the matter of supplying equipment is one of government policy, and, therefore, my decision it not necessarily final. I assume, however, that the war committee of the cabinet would, in event of application being made, desire to obtain my opinion, and if my opinion were asked it would be as stated, namely, that while the port of Victoria is important and in need of protection of this nature, yet I am not prepared to recommend that the government should undertake the responsibility of providing fire-fighting equipment for all ports of this category."

The mayor voiced opinion provision of a fire barge here would not entail supplying such equipment to other Canadian cities. The exposed position of Victoria, he said, would, in his opinion, make it more vulnerable than Vancouver, and consequently in greater need of a barge.

$849,274 Prepaid

Two full months before city taxes actually fall due, Victoria has collected $849,274 of its $1,451,328 levy through prepayments, the assessor-collector's department reported today.

The amount is $12,510 above the $836,764 collected at the equivalent date last year.

The increase virtually doubles the anticipated drop in arrears collections. In the latter division, $61,958 has been received this year against $68,548 last year.

Killed in Action

FO. Gordon Fraser, 29, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Fraser, 790 Linkleas Avenue, was killed in action July 9.

He is survived by his wife, the former Audrey Haddow, and a four-year-old son, Bruce, residing in this city.

Fraser received his commission after passing second in his class at Jarvis, Ont., and went overseas last December. His youngest brother, Wilfred, also in the R.C.A.F., has for two years been instructing at No. 1 Wireless School, Montreal.

Another brother, Victor, is serving in the Canadan Navy on the Atlantic.

Nazi Rocket Planes Have Terrific Speed, Allied Fliers Say

LONDON (CP)—The Germans have taken the wraps off another new weapon—a rocket-propelled fighter—and all Allied fliers who have encountered the planes agreed today they are capable of terrific speed.

Little is known so far of the effectiveness of the craft. Only seven have been met and they did not stand to fight, but the speed at which they ran away underscores the importance they might assume if the Germans manage to produce them on a mass scale.

Berlin has been hinting at rocket-propelled planes for months. The U.S. air force announced Monday night that Allied heavy bombers and their convoy of fighters ran into a group of new planes over Germany last Friday.

PLANTS RAIDED

The Allies have recognized for some time that Nazi jet and rocket-propelled planes, if allowed to appear in big numbers, could challenge Allied air superiority, and it is understood here that is one of the reasons more than 27,000 heavy bomber sorties were sent against German industry and oil supplies in July.

But the Allies might have the answer to this new German weapon in a new fighter of equal or superior capabilities. A joint Anglo-American announcement some months ago said the Allies were experimenting with a successful jet-propelled plane. There has been no announcement it has gone into action.

Rocket-propelled planes differ from jet-propelled craft in that the oxygen which helps drive them is carried aboard in combination with other elements instead of being taken from the air through which the plane passes.

The speedy German rocket planes have been designated as ME 163's.

Col. Alvin P. Tacon of Mobile, Ala., said his Mustang formation encountered five of the planes. He said he was unable to get his sights on either of two he tried to catch. A Mustang can do better than 400 miles an hour.

Major Gains Shown In City Land Sales

Total receipts from the city lands department for the first seven months of this year are approximately $55,000 above those for the similar period last year, figures released by the department today disclosed.

At July 31 this year $134,187 had been received against $79,639 during the similar period last year. The increase was made despite a slight recession in cash receipts during July, when $12,590 was received against $15,219 in the similar month last year.

Sales showed major gains, 274 properties having been sold for $105,663 this year to date against 153 for $46,923 at July 31, 1943. Last month 31 properties were sold for $15,235 against 32 for $10,251 in July last year.

Condition of Lawrence Jamieson, 2335 Howard Street, seriously injured in a collision between his motorcycle and a street-car Sunday, is reported "unimproved and critical" by Royal Jubilee Hospital, while his companion, Alfred Lalonde, 211 Wilson Street, also injured in the crash, is reported to be improving.

Brigadier Impressed With Reserve Army

Officers and men of the reserve army units in camp at Gordon Head received warm praise today from Brig. Kenneth Perry, D.S.O., assistant director of the Canadian Reserve Army following his inspection of the troops in camp and on schemes.

Accompanied by Col. A. W. Sparling, D.S.O., M.C., officer commanding the 39th Reserve Brigade Group, and Lt.-Col. F. Brooke Stephenson, officer commanding the Scottish, the brigadier watched the Scottish on their schemes as they deployed with Bren guns and mortars, camouflaging themselves against "enemy" eyes and taking advantage of every possible source of concealment.

He was pleased with the troops, the brigadier said, and impressed with the work they were doing. There was definitely a place for the reserve army on this coast, he said.

Monday, Brig. Perry, in company with Col. Sparling and Lt.-Col. Stephenson, had toured the forts of the area.

Also in camp were the Veterans' Guard, numbering about a dozen, under the command of Maj. J. R. McIlree, D.S.O., and 30 men of No. 2 Group, No. 11 Reserve, Divisional Ordnance Workshop, of New Westminster. Prince Rupert Regiment (M.G.) arrived this afternoon.

Insists Rommel, Stuelpnagel Dead

ALGIERS (AP)—The French underground has reported that Marshal Rommel and Gen. Otto von Stuelpnagel both died in France, the Committee of National Liberation said today.

Rommel, German ground commander in Normandy, was said to have been fatally wounded in the head during an air attack on the Normandy front. (The German radio denied Monday that Rommel either was dead or seriously wounded.)

Stuelpnagel, military administrator of occupied France, was reported to have committed suicide following failure of the generals' plot on Hitler's life. The underground report said Stuelpnagel July 21 ordered the arrest of Gen. Oberg, chief of the Gestapo in the Paris area, but ordered his release and return to Berlin the following day. The underground said Stuelpnagel then drove to Verdun and shot himself.

British Progress To Florence Slow

ROME (AP) — Troops of the British-Canadian 8th Army are making slow, methodical progress in their advance on Florence against five German divisions fighting a last-stand battle before the Tuscan capital, Allied headquarters announced today.

South of the city the Germans lunged out with fierce counter-attacks along a wide semicircular front which now forks their defence line.

"It is clear the enemy is determined to make a real stand as long as he is able, but the 8th Army's advance is relentlessly forcing him from successive strongpoints," headquarters said.

The Germans are using three of the best divisions at their disposal in Italy for guarding the approaches to Florence. These units are the 4th Parachute Division, the 29th Panzer Grenadiers and the 3rd Panzer Grenadiers. They have the support of Tiger tanks and are using a new type of booby trap—grenades set off by wires stretched across roads at a height to catch the aerials of radio-equipped vehicles. The grenades themselves are tied to trees and explode over the vehicles.

5000 U.S. Planes Fly to Russia By Northwest Canada Route

By JACK SULLIVAN

EDMONTON (CP) — One of the war's best-kept secrets today is history—and with it is written one of the proudest chapters in Canada's aviation log-book.

It was learned from United States military sources here, Monday night, that approximately 5,000 fighters and bombers, on lend-lease from the U.S., have soared through Canadian skies en route to Russia, where they have helped wreak havoc on the once-powerful Nazi air force.

Since October, 1941, it was learned, nearly 10,000 battle planes, displaying the Soviet insignia, the Red Star on a white background, have left U.S. factories destined for the Russian front. (Those which did not go by Edmonton were sent to Russia by other routes.)

2,200 IN 4 MONTHS

During the first four months of this year, 2,200 aircraft, flown by U.S. ferry pilots, winged their way from Great Falls, Mont., through Edmonton to Fairbanks, Alaska. Soviet fliers relayed the planes 540 miles to Nome, on the west coast of central Alaska, made a 50-mile over-water hop into Siberia, Russia's "back door," and then over a route blanketed in official secrecy.

The North American flight from Great Falls via Edmonton to the Alaska town, just 116 miles south of the Arctic Circle, is nearly 1,000 miles, and is the main aerial path from the western hemisphere to the Far East.

It was Sept. 14, 1942, that shark-nosed fighters and heavy bombers, en route to the Soviet, glided into the Edmonton municipal airport in plain view of Edmontonians. They took off after an overnight stopover, and it's been a steady procession from that date, the stream of fighters alternating with the roar of bombers.

At first, Albertans deluged newspapers and radio stations with questions concerning these air armadas, but official secrecy was necessary, and Albertans helped keep it.

STATEMENT IN NOVEMBER

The secret was broken in Washington last Nov. 24 by James Patterson, U.S. Under-Secretary of War, when he revealed before the Senate Truman Committee existence of the northwestern Canadian air ferry route from the U.S. to Russia. But since then the censorship lid had been clamped on the story, known throughout the north.

Daring Canadian airmen and engineers may claim licence to the aerial short cut to Russia. They were the men who, before the war, pioneered a route through Canada's northwest wilderness, paving the way for U.S. aircraft moving to Alaska and the Aleutian Islands.

The Dominion Government built a chain of strategically situated airports along this path, from Edmonton to Whitehorse, Y.T., and today it is known as the Northwest Staging Route. Operated by the R.C.A.F., these fields have radio facilities and servicing depots comparable to those on a main airline route on the North American continent.

Official secrecy still shrouds the misadventures of the northern passage, and also the achievements, but losses are said to be a few—a tribute to the Canadians who surveyed the route and built the fields under almost heart-breaking difficulties of surface transportation.

It is viewed by the Dominion Government as one of the vital links in the world-wide chain of air routes to be developed by commercial services after the war.

Railway Pay Boost Involves Total Of $20,000,000 a Year

OTTAWA (CP) — Employees of 17 Canadian railways had their pay increased by six cents an hour and were given a bonus in the form of back pay at the new rate under a National War Labor Board decision announced Monday night.

It was unofficially estimated today that the increase, affecting from 100,000 to 175,000 workers, would swell the pay envelopes of Canadian railwaymen by from $15,000,000 to $25,000,000 a year.

In the board's main decision, affecting 100,000 workers for whom increases were sought in a joint application by 18 unions, the increase dates back to Sept. 15, 1943. In another case, that of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees (C.C.L.) it goes back to May 25, 1943, and in the third, the Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Employees (A.F.L.), it is retroactive to March 3, 1943.

The basic case, on which the board issued its finding, was an application by the 18 unions for equalization of Canadian running trades railway wages with rates paid on eastern United States lines. This would have meant increases at approximately 25 to 32 cents an hour. For workers not in the running trades, the unions asked a straight increase of 32 cents an hour.

COMPARISONS MADE

Thus the board turned down flatly the unions' contention that railway workers in Canada should be paid the same rates as in the United States, but said an investigation showed employees in other industries in Canada had received increases in excess of those paid railway workers.

Railways involved in the case are: Canadian National Railways and their subsidiaries; Canadian Pacific Railway and its subsidiaries; Dominion Atlantic; Quebec Central; Esquimalt & Nanaimo; Northern Alberta, Algoma Central & Hudson Bay; Essex Terminal; Pacific Great Eastern; Sydney & Louisburg; Temiscouata, Temiskaming & Northern Ontario; Toronto, Hamilton & Buffalo, and Toronto Terminals.

The board dealt with the reasons for its decision in a 2,000-word finding on the main case.

"The whole policy of control of wages and prices in this country is entirely distinct and unrelated to the economy of the United States," it said.

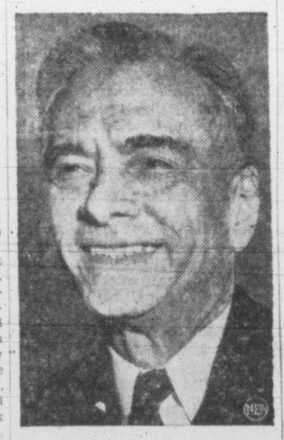
Exiled President Of Philippines, M. Quezon, Dies



SARANAC LAKE, N.Y. (AP) — Manuel Quezon, 65, exiled President of the Philippine government, which he had headed since 1935, died today at a summer home here from tuberculosis.

Independence for the Philippine Islands was the issue on which Manuel Luis Quezon became one of the master politicians of the Orient. He reaped his reward in election as first President of the Commonwealth government which, Nov. 15, 1935, took over the administration of the islands for a 10-year period designed to be transitional from the dependent to full independent status.

Quezon always sought freedom for the archipelago. He was still a law student when the United States drove the Spaniards out of the Islands in 1898, but he dropped his studies the next year when President McKinley's pronouncement that "the constitution follows the flag" dashed the hopes of Emilio Aguinaldo that his provisional government would be recognized and drove him into open rebellion.

6 MONTHS IN JAIL

After playing a leading part in the subsequent insurrection under Aguinaldo and spending six months in a military prison, Quezon resumed study for the bar and entered politics.

For more than 30 years Quezon co-operated with Washington in promoting self-government for the islands, frequently visiting the capital, promise of which he finally obtained due for fulfillment in 1946.

ESCAPED BY SUB

After the Japanese invasion and capture of the Philippines, Quezon went to Washington after fleeing the islands in a submarine and visiting Gen. MacArthur in Australia.

Quezon was born in the village of Baler, province of Tayabas, Aug. 18, 1878, of mixed Filipino and Spanish parentage, his father being a school teacher and small farmer. The son received his A.B. degree from San Juan de Letran College and his law degree from Santo Tomas University in Manila in 1903.

Dec. 17, 1918, he married at Hongkong Aurora Aragon of Baler. Four children were born to them, of whom two daughters and a son survived infancy.

4 Famous Regiments Of Canada Named In French Battle

By LOUIS V. HUNTER

WITH THE CANADIANS IN FRANCE (CP) — Four famous Canadian regiments which were engaged in recent fighting in Normandy were the Black Watch of Montreal, the Royal Hamilton Light Infantry, the Calgary Highlanders and the Royal Regiment of Canada, a Toronto unit, it was disclosed today.

The R.H.L.I. and the Royals were the fifth and sixth Canadian regiments to be identified in Normandy which took part in the combined operations raid on Dieppe nearly two years ago.

Previously named in Normandy were the Queen's Own Cameron Highlanders of Winnipeg, the South Saskatchewan Regiment of Weyburn, Sas., Les Fusiliers Mont-Royal, a French-speaking unit from Montreal, and the Essex Scottish Regiment of Windsor, Ont.

At the Dieppe raid the Essex Scottish were brigaded with the R.H.L.I. and the Royals, the other three regiments formed the other Canadian brigade which saw action that day. Both brigades were drawn from the Canadian 2nd Infantry Division.

RECENT ARRIVALS

The four regiments whose names were disclosed today arrived in Normandy only a few weeks ago and have performed creditably in actions which gave them their battle initiation.

The fighting in which some of these regiments participated has been about the fiercest the Canadians have seen since D-Day.

It was the Royals—the Royal Regiment of Canada—veterans of Dieppe, who advanced from Le Mesnil, south of Caen, to capture Louvigny in a 12-hour fight that saw them push the Germans from that strongly-held small valley town and orchard. The Germans had good defensive positions behind the high stone walls of the orchard and in a 17th century chateau they had once used as a hospital.

Verrieres, southernmost point to which the Canadians have advanced along the Caen-Falaise road, was taken by the Royal Hamilton Light Infantry, after French-speaking troops from Quebec had secured two hillside towns immediately north of Verrieres.

To Mark Birthday Of Canadian Poet

A birthday anniversary program for the famous poet, Duncan Campbell Scott, will be heard on the Trans-Canada network of the CBC, Wednesday at 1.30 p.m., PDT.

The broadcast has been arranged by a close personal friend of Mr. Scott, Ira Dilworth, regional representative for the CBC in British Columbia.

Mr. Dilworth will read three of Duncan Campbell Scott's lyrics: "The Fallen," which was written during the last war; "The Old Olives at Bordighera," a memento of his visit to Italy; and the concluding section from his philosophical poem, "The Height of Land."

For the broadcast Mr. Dilworth has chosen some of the Canadian poet's favorite music, the Brahms Variations on a Theme of Haydn. This is the recording that he played for Mr. Dilworth on the occasion of the latter's visit to Ottawa.

Mr. Scott will be 82 tomorrow.

Flagpole Doubles Length, Spieler Says

Herb Warren, city parks superintendent, with many years' experience in horticulture, wonders if it's a miracle.

This week, at Beacon Hill Park, he heard the barker on a tallyho tell sightseers to look at the flagpole at the top of the hill.

"It's the tallest flagpole in the world—300 feet," the barker said.

"If that is so," says Mr. Warren, "it's probably the only cut flagpole in the world which has doubled its length in seven years." The pole, Mr. Warren explained, was only 156 feet long when it was put up.

One Woman's Day . . .

By NANCY HODGES

VACATION SCHOOL

SO MUCH is being written and said these days about delinquent juveniles, that I am interested in any experiment aimed to prevent children from becoming a problem.

That is why I paid a visit to the Vacation School being conducted for two weeks at the corner of Belmont and Pembroke.

As I arrived I heard youngsters laughing and scrambling. And soon learned the reason. Sixteen boys, ranging in age from 10 to 14, were playing team games with great gusto.

While I watched, about 40 other little boys and girls paraded from a garden across the street, lustily singing "Onward Christian Soldiers," and marched into the Belmont United Church.

VOLUNTARY SERVICE

FOR this church is responsible for the school. Last year it revived the idea, after a lapse of some years, and met with such success that parents asked for its resumption this year.

And it speaks volumes for the need when you consider that 125 pupils, from the age of four to 14, are attending daily from 9.30 till 12.

To run it, Rev. H. W. Kerley, the pastor, and his wife, together with 25 teachers, donate their services voluntarily.

One with whom I chatted disclosed that she is a teacher here on holidays from Regina, but became so interested that she volunteered to help and is enjoying what you might call a "busman's holiday."

But don't think it is a picnic to entertain and at the same time instruct lively youngsters during holiday time! It is anything but!

RHYTHM BAND

FOR instance, in one classroom I found 25 kiddies from the age of three to five years.

Whhen I first peeped in they were at the cookie "stage," and were seated around a long table. After piping grace together, they were regaled with a cookie each.

Later I heard them in the throes of preparation for a "jam session," or in other words, a rehearsal of the rhythm band.

I use the term "jam session," advisedly. In case any of you parents do not care to display your ignorance by asking your sons and daughters, it is defined by experts as "a gathering of instrumentalists who improvise simultaneously on any given theme."

IMPROVISING SIMULTANEOUSLY

AND how those youngsters, both girls and boys, can improvise simultaneously! And on improvised instruments, for I noticed tin cans, blocks of wood, sticks with tiny bells attached, saucepan lids, and what-not.

Those little performers first tuned up with as much discord as the grown-up musicians in an orchestra prior to a performance.

Then they marched around the room, banging their tin cans, or beating their sticks and clanging their clappers with an enthusiasm which was delightful but deafening. And no one said them nay.

I marvelled at the patience and endurance of the teacher, but was told that she is an expert in rhythm bands, so probably is impervious to noise.

TEEN-AGE BOYS

THE presence of about 20 teen-age boys at the school intrigued me. For boys of that age are not always amenable to this kind of experiment.

But I found the secret of success lay in the understanding approach. After team games under Mr. Kerley's supervision, they go inside the church for brief Bible reading and hymn singing.

Then for the last half-hour they gather in the garden at the back of the church and indulge in handicraft.

I found some there at work with an electric lathe, others with fretsaws, others with paint brushes. They were making wooden doorstops, little shelves, and quaint rabbit figures for garden decoration.

All were so engrossed in their task that I could readily understand why they are reluctant to leave when the time is up.

ENJOY THEIR HANDWORK

IN EACH of the three classes, beginners, primary and juniors, the children learn to use their hands as well as their heads in this vacation school.

One group of little tots was busy around a sand box, making all the things children love to do with sand.

In another room a larger group was dramatizing a Bible story, and I was amused to see the enthralled interest with which two of the smallest boys took part.

Later this same group carried on a fascinating project of building a replica of the Sea of Galilee, and the surrounding country.

Tiny and realistic palm trees were made with plastic stems and tiny feathers dyed green. The little houses, true to type, were made of cardboard, and the children proudly showed me their efforts.

GIRLS LEARN TO SEW

ALSO IN THE open air, a group of older girls was busy sewing. But not dull things.

They showed me the dainty lavender bags, attractive shopping bags, effective little corsage bouquets fashioned of beads, and other charming novelties.

Belmont Church is not the only one conducting such a school, I learned. Metropolitan, First United and the Chinese United joined for one such school, while Centennial and James Bay United have each held one.

So my hat goes off to the volunteers who give up their precious leisure to such an undertaking.

For here children learn to associate religion with happiness. It is one of the finest antidotes to juvenile delinquency that I know.

Canadians Fight to Standstill In Bitter Battle in Wheatfield

By LOUIS V. HUNTER

WITH THE CANADIANS IN FRANCE (CP)—Western Canada infantry and the tanks of a famous British regiment fought their way into the strongly-defended hillside town of Tilly la Campagne, east of the Orne River and five miles south of Caen, today after a bitter pre-dawn engagement in thick fog.

(A later report from a Reuters correspondent said the Canadians had withdrawn from the town after a German counterattack.)

The attack against this town, east of the Falaise road and south of Caen, which the Canadians and Germans have been in and out of since last Tuesday's offensive began, opened shortly after 2.30 this morning under an artillery barrage and was supported by tanks.

The going has been hard and bitter fighting is continuing not only in parts of the town but along the railway tracks west of the town.

To reach the town the Canadians had to advance about 1,000 yards along a side road dipping down the main highway. They pushed through grainfields alive with snipers who inflicted casualties in the vicious exchanges. The Canadians were also subjected to heavy shelling, motor and machine gun fire.

REFORM FOR ATTACK

There were casualties among the forward companies which withdrew temporarily and then reformed and returned to the attack.

Pte. Leslie Shave of Sunnybrook, Alta., who walked back two miles with two youthful German prisoners he had taken near the railway tracks, said "my bunch was pinned down all night and we are just begining to move now."

He turned over the prisoners and then hitch hiked with a couple of correspondents up to a crossroads about a mile from his company. The chatter of rifle and machine gun fire echoed in the thick fog.

CAKED WITH MUD

At the crossroads two grimy figures were standing beside a shot-up van. They were Ptes. Jack Lee of Turner Valley, Alta., and John Norman of Calgary. Like Shave they were caked with mud.

"It was tough going," said stubble-faced Lee. "But not as tough as our last show."

He said the Germans mortared the line along with the Canadians were advancing behind an artillery barrage. "They always seem to know just where our barrage ends and they let us have it."

Norman said the entire advance had been through thick, muddy grainfields until they reached the railway. The fog was so thick the troops had been able to infiltrate into a German battalion headquarters area and had taken some prisoners there.

One group of men who came out of the line about 9 a.m., were so tired they could hardly drag their muddy feet along. They turned into the streets on the outskirts of Vaucelles, and some just slumped on the sidewalks and cried.

The men didn't even bother to remove their heavy web equipment. They just dropped their guns and sprawled exhausted on the ground.

This Typewriter Off Nazi Sub— And It's a Dandy

Art Kerr, manager of Remington Rand here, had a different machine brought to his office today—a German model taken from a captured Nazi submarine in mid-Atlantic.

Souvenir of the battle between his destroyer and the submarine, the typewriter is the property of a Royal Navy man now serving in the Mediterranean who left it with friends in Victoria. Made by Seide and Naumann of Dresden, it is an Erika model. Letters scratched on the side spell Kriegsmarine, meaning marine service.

"It's smoother than any portable turned out in North America, said Doug Park, foreman of the shop, who has been working on the machine. "No matter how much we hate the Germans, we must admire their mechanics are perfect."

Keyboard is the same as ours except the "y" and "z" are interchanged. These can be altered to conform with our machines.

Mr. Park pointed out some improvements that Canadian and American manufacturers have yet to take up. On the Erika, tabulating stops are set from the front by a key and by another key can be taken out, either all or one at a time. Margins are semi-automatically set from the front of the machine. Another key gives automatic spacing between each letter. Vertical spacing is adjusted for half-space.

With C.N.R. 25 Years

AUSTIN CURTIS

Austin I. Curtis, city ticket agent, Canadian National Railways, today rounded out his 25th year with the company.

When asked about his quarter century of service this morning, Mr. Curtis spoke earnestly of his close association ever so many years with Charles F. Earle, C.N.R. district passenger agent here.

It was on Aug. 1, 1919, that Mr. Curtis joined the company, then known as the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway. Prior to that he was attached to military headquarters, M.D. 13, at Calgary. In 1915 he was on the staff of the C.P.R. department of natural resources, stationed in Calgary.

For the past four years, Mr. Curtis has been a prominent member of the Victoria School Board, and is now chairman of that body.

Premier Hart Repeats Electricity Aid Due

Victoria's latest application to the Public Utilities Commission to implement its findings by reducing light and power rates for this region, is acknowledged by Premier John Hart, who received a copy of the City Council resolution calling for action.

In a letter to the city he quotes his statement at the last session in respect to the matter, saying:

"The Public Utilities Commission will continue to review the operation of the B.C. Electric Railway Company Limited, and it is expected that further relief will be given to consumers this year."

Stocks and Mines

TORONTO (Dow Jones)—Diamond drill machine has arrived at the Nicholson mines group adjoining the Ptarmigan property of Consolidated Smelters east of Yellowknife Bay and will be put to work immediately. In addition to gold values, sampling of two veins on this group has given silver assays of 32 and 9 ounces. Veins are similar in appearance to those on the Ptarmigan, it is stated. This company also holds its original property at Lake Athabaska on which sowings of gold, pitchblende nickel and other minerals have been reported over a considerable area. This company is prospecting other sections of the Yellowknife district and may acquire additional ground on the favorable greenstone belt. Ample funds to carry out the company's plans are in the treasury. . . . Diamond drilling program is now under way at Olivet Gold Mines property located east of and ajoining the Ritoria property in the East Kirkland Lake-Larder Lake area. A geological survey was carried out by James and Buffam, who recommended 10,000 feet of drilling to test the Larder Lake break crossing the property. Some $40,000 has been provided for the program by Frobisher Exploration, Leitch Gold Mines, Madsden Red Lake, Moneta Porcupine, K. J. Springer, Austin Johnston and R. J. Jowsey.
